Meat sales off

Boycott takes effect

By KRIS LILJEHOLM
Associated Press Writer

Consumers appear to be biting into the week-long meat boycott with determination, throwing off meat sales by as much as 80 per cent in scores of supermarkets from coast to coast and slicing some prices 29 cents a pound.

"It's like my meat had some disease. Nobody'll even touch it," complained a meat manager in the New York City area, where a check of supermarkets showed the boycott to be about 80 per cent effective on the first shopping day Monday.

A shopping-cart check in Boise, Idaho, found 22 out of 50 women had bypassed the meat counter. In Albuquerque, N.M., only about a third of the shoppers in one store were taking home meat. A survey of six large Oklahoma City supermarkets turned up no customers at the meat counter in three stores, only one woman at another and meat buying "about normal" in the other two.

While many retailers were saying it was too soon to tell how successful the boycott would be, since most households do their weekly shopping in midweek and many had stocked up on meat last week, red meat prices were on the way down in a few stores by as much as 29 cents a pound.

Effects of the boycott showed up everywhere along the line, from the stockyards to the packing houses.

Cattle were $1 to $2 higher in Kansas City markets, while hogs were down $3. At the National Stockyards in Illinois, cattle were mostly $1 higher, with hogs $3 to $4 lower.

Siouxland Beef Processors closed their plants temporarily in Fargo, N.D., Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa. They said they wanted to determine what effect the boycott would have.

Standard Beef Inc. of Detroit, which normally processes 150-200 cattle a day, was handling only 100-125. Meat packers across Michigan reported orders down 25 per cent.

Some 500 butchers were furloughed by Cincinnati packing houses. Thomas Ranshaw, president of the local butcher's union, said he expected 500 more to be laid off by week's end as farmers and ranchers withhold stock and processors buy cautiously.

One dinner table where meat was conspicuously present Monday evening was at the Western White House, where visiting South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and President Nixon dined on roast prime tenderloin of beef.

The President last Thursday announced a ceiling on beef, pork and lamb prices, allowing retailers to sell the products at their top rate for March but no higher.

Nixon's adviser on consumer affairs, Virginia Knauer, said in San Francisco Monday the boycott would have no long-range effect and urged shoppers instead to be selective in their buying.

Many stores reported a run on fish and poultry. A Cedar Falls, Iowa, market turned over nearly half its meat counter to fish and found reaction "much better than we expected."

An Iowa turkey farmer, Keith Burbridge of Cedar Falls, said the demand for the holiday bird was the strongest in 25 years. Poultry sales were "out of sight" over the weekend at a chain in Portland, Ore.

New York City's Fulton Fish Market was booming Monday — but one fishmonger said he was boycotting fish. "They wanted $2.50 a pound for yellow-tail fillet," said Louis Kleber of South River, N.J.

"That's 70 cents over what I sell it for. I turned it down."

Retail meat price cutbacks were reported in several areas.

The Great Scott chain, with 46 outlets in Michigan, said it was rolling back beef, pork and lamb prices to the lowest everyday price levels charged in March, instead of holding to the highest prices, as allowed by the President's ceiling order. USDA choice chuck steaks, for instance, 98 cents a pound under the ceiling limits, will be 79 cents, the chain said.

Piggly Wiggly, a chain of 22 stores in Minnesota, rolled back prices on some cuts of beef and pork about 10 cents a pound. Dominick's, a major Chicago area chain, was advertising sirloin at $1.30 a pound, 29 cents below recent prices, and Baltimore's Giant Food Inc. lowered the price of several cuts of beef.

Jane Fuld, Dallas chairman of Fight Inflation Together — the group which originated the meat-ban idea in California — said, "Supermarkets are advertising meat like never before. Prices are down as much as 20 or 30 cents per pound. I don't know if the reductions are permanent or if they're just trying to spoil our boycott."

An official of the Oregon Cattlemen's Association warned such effects were only temporary. Donald Ostenson said the boycott's effect "will be to raise meat prices to an even higher level in months to come. It's an artificial disruption of the natural forces of supply and demand."

Nixon fund impoundment was not legal, federal court rules

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that President Nixon acted illegally in impounding federal highway construction funds appropriated by Congress.

The ruling came on Monday as the appeals court upheld a decision by U.S. District Court Judge William Becker of Kansas City that the President could not withhold $89 million in road funds from the Missouri Highway Commission.

In its 2-1 majority opinion, the Court of Appeals said funds appropriated by Congress "are not to be withheld from obligation for purposes totally unrelated to the highway program."

President Nixon has said he intends to curb inflation by holding federal spending at $250 billion. He has impounded some $15 billion appropriated by Congress for federal programs such as housing, rural conservation and highways.

A government attorney who had represented former Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, told the court in January the President is not obligated by law to spend money appropriated by Congress and that if such spending is to be mandatory, Congress must pass a law to that effect.

Judge Donald P. Lay said in the appeals court's majority opinion, however, that nothing in the 1956 Federal-Aid Highway Act "explicitly or impliedly allows the Secretary of Transportation to withhold approval of construction projects for reasons remote and unrelated to the act."

Concurring in the decision was Judge Gerald W. Heaney of Duluth, Minn. Lay, of Omaha, Neb., and Heaney were appointed to the court by former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The dissenter was Judge Roy L. Stephenson of Des Moines, Iowa, who was named to the appeals panel by President Nixon.

In his dissenting opinion,

Stephenson said his interpretation of the highway act was that Congress "made a deliberate choice ... to grant to the executive discretion in determining the extent to which appropriated funds will be made available for obligation."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and 19 other Democratic Senators had filed a friend of the court brief supporting the highway commission's contention that the money should be released.

Nixon winning first congressional test

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon appears to have a good chance today to win the first test with the 1973 Congress over a vetoed spending-authorization bill.

At issue is a $2.6-billion, three-year extension of long-established vocational-rehabilitation programs to help the physically and mentally handicapped.

The first vote comes this afternoon in the Senate, where Democratic leaders are cautiously optimistic they have the two-thirds margin to override.

But in the House, which plans to vote later in the afternoon if the Senate rejects the veto, the odds appear to be with the President.

Republican Leader Gerald Ford said "we are very optimistic" the veto can be sustained in the House. Democratic leaders conceded they would need about 50 GOP votes to win.

Democratic sources said the administration appeared to be making an all-out effort to sustain the President, believing that a victory would dampen further Democratic moves to overturn Nixon's recommendations on spending issues.

The battle is largely a symbolic one since, even if the vocational-rehabilitation bill is enacted into law, it will not determine actual spending for the program in the year ahead.

The spending would be fixed in an appropriations bill which will be acted on later. The vetoed measure simply authorizes funds and establishes a ceiling on what can be appropriated.

The veto fight is just the first of several actions scheduled at the Capitol this week in the continuing battle of the budget between the President and Congress.

The House Wednesday will consider a bill to restore low-interest-rate rural electrification and telephone loans ended by Nixon last December. The Senate already has passed a version of this.

Nixon, Thieu reaffirm strong national ties

By FRANK CORMIER

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon and Saigon's Nguyen Van Thieu were ready to reaffirm strong ties between their governments today at the windup of their first meeting in nearly four years.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon and the South Vietnamese president were discussing everything from continued U.S. aid to the Thieu regime to Nixon's plans for similar assistance to Hanoi.

As for Nixon's repeated warnings to North Vietnam that violations of the Paris peace agreement could bring serious consequences, Ziegler said this was another summit topic. The continued American bombing aimed at slowing a communist advance in Cambodia also was being discussed he added.

Ziegler was firm in saying "I don't believe it would serve any useful purpose to focus on hypothetical military situations" and a possible resumption of U.S. bombing missions over Vietnam if truce violations continue.

The White House spokesman said the two leaders were reaffirming their alliance during their two days of talks. He suggested redevelopment aid was a priority item on the agenda.

After a morning conference today, the Nixons were allowing their visitor and Mrs. Thieu the use of the Nixon home to entertain the American summit delegation at a farewell luncheon.

The two presidents promised to end their sessions with oral statements and a joint communique.

Thieu's helicopter visits to the Nixon compound — he has been staying at a Los Angeles hotel — have attracted several hundred mostly youthful picketers to the Western White House.

The demonstrators have called for Thieu's removal, recognition of the Viet Cong and assistance to North Vietnam. Police kept them at a distance from Nixon's home.

In welcoming Thieu Monday, Nixon said:

"We meet to work toward the building of peace, a peace for your land which has suffered so much, and your people who have suffered so much, and a peace, as it is built there, which can contribute to lasting peace in the world."

Thieu said American sacrifices helped make possible "a peace with honor" — a favorite Nixon phrase. He added that history shows "there can be no solid peace in the world unless there is peace and stability in the Pacific area."

Cambodian bombing is the heaviest of war

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes, including every available B52 bomber in Southeast Asia, gave communist forces in Cambodia their heaviest pounding of the war during the night as part of the Nixon administration's campaign to force them into a cease-fire, reliable sources reported today.

The sources compared the bombing to the attacks on Hanoi and Haiphong last December that were aimed at forcing North Vietnam into a peace settlement. But the communists in Cambodia are widely dispersed and have none of the industrial concentrations vulnerable to air attack that the North Vietnamese had.

The sources said they were unable to say just how many strikes U.S. pilots flew or how many tons of bombs they dropped. But they indicated about 120 B52s were used in the attack, and that could mean a total of 3,600 tons of bombs dropped.

The U.S. Pacific Command in Honolulu, the official source of information on American air operations in Indochina, made its usual uncommunicative announcement that U.S. B52s continued operations over Cambodia Monday for the 27th successive day.

Military sources said some of the big bombers, along with F111 fighter-bombers, supported Cambodian government troops advancing into the Kirirom plateau 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

The government troops reportedly reached the plateau and found a deserted base camp of the Khmer Rouge Communists. But meanwhile other government forces south of Phnom Penh continued to retreat and abandoned the garrison town of Chambak, 30 miles south of the capital.

A number of U.S. congressmen contend that President Nixon no longer has constitutional authority to use American air power in Cambodia, but Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson in several recent appearances has contended that they are wrong.

He told a news conference in Washington Monday that the administration's objective in Cambodia "is to see the cease-fire come into being there." He added that Cambodia is a vulnerable flank to South Vietnam since "it would be a base to launch attacks."

The Vietnam cease-fire prohibits U.S. planes from hitting inside South Vietnam, but there have been reports they are still attacking concentrations of communist troops and supplies in Cambodia that are destined for South Vietnam.

White House aide asked to resign

By BROOKS JACKSON
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican member of the Senate Watergate investigating committee today called for the resignation of White House chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman.

"I think it would be quite proper for Mr. Haldeman to offer his resignation to Mr. Nixon," Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., told newsmen.

Weicker has said he personally believes Haldeman knew both the men and policies behind the wiretapping of Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate office building late June.

Weicker said persons involved in the case have told him "we just didn't do anything without checking with Mr. Haldeman."

Weicker was asked if he believes the President should fire his chief aide and he replied: "It's not proper for Mr. Nixon to sit there and do what Mr. Haldeman should do himself ... he has to accept responsibility as chief of staff. It has resulted in occurrences not part of the normal processes of elections."

The investigating committee, meantime, acting to plug a flood of leaked information, said it will hold no more secret sessions with convicted Watergate spy James W. McCord Jr.

All further interviews with McCord will be conducted by the committee staff at undisclosed times and places with a view to beginning open hearings within 10 days to two weeks, a committee spokesman said.

A secret session scheduled with McCord Wednesday before the full committee was canceled.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., the committee chairman, said his panel does not expect to hold private formal sessions with any other witness.

Ervin told a news conference there are "indications" that either McCord or his attorney, Bernard Fensterwald, may have been the sources of the leaks which triggered newspaper stories on what McCord told the committee in private last Wednesday.

Monday, after yet another news account quoted supposedly secret testimony linking the White House to the spying, President Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, complained of "irresponsible leaks" and called on Ervin to "get his house in order."

Earlier Monday, Ervin, just back from an absence of several days to attend a family funeral, said at a news conference he was worried about the news leaks. "I think that infinite harm can be done to an individual to charge him with complicity in a case of this kind in the absence of any concrete evidence," he said.

Loop plan to be revised

Building Code Board of Appeals to be created

By DAVID C. McKAY
Daily News Staff Writer

Winona councilmen Monday night voted introduction of ordinances to create a Building Code Board of Appeals, replace parking meters along the Morgan Block and to amend the Downtown (traffic) Loop system.

First reading approval was made on an ordinance to create an appeals board for the Uniform Building Code adopted by the city to meet state standards. The board will involve appointees with knowledge of buildings and architecture to handle appeals to the building inspector's decisions.

COUNCILMEN were advised by City Attorney George M. Robertson Jr. that the current Board of Adjustment's lay membership does not qualify to handle appeals. Decisions and findings of the new board will be forwarded to the state building inspector.

The ordinance also provides that in cases of proposed developments too complex for city staff to handle the city may hire outside professionals at the applicants' cost.

One-hour parking meters will be installed again on the east side of Main Street between West 2nd and 3rd streets if council approves second reading of the ordinance.

An ordinance to eliminate some restrictions on left turns and some parking to give better driver sight distance and room for turning lanes will return for council considerations.

THE ORDINANCE would repeal a previous ordinance section prohibiting left turns onto East 4th Street from southbound Lafayette, Center and Walnut streets and onto East 2nd Street from northbound Lafayette and Center streets.

"U" turns would be banned on Main Street between West 2nd and 4th streets, on West 2nd Street from Johnson to Walnut and on East 3rd Street between Franklin and Lafayette streets and from Main to Washington Street. This affects the entire loop area.

The alley from Lafayette Street to Center Street would be one-way west.

Councilman Earl Laufenburger (1st Ward) asked for a study on the three-way stop at Johnson and West 2nd streets for possible changes in the stopping requirements.

Sale of bonds helps erase school deficit

The favorable financial impact on Winona Independent School District 861 as a result of a $660,000 bond issue sold last spring to erase the district's operating deficits was reported to the district school board Monday night by Superintendent of Schools A. L. Nelson.

Nelson recalled that the bonds had been issued to eliminate perennial operating deficits at the end of each fiscal year caused by lags in receipt of state and federal aids.

In erasing the deficit with the bonds, Nelson said, the school district this past year has been able to operate virtually without warrants and this has resulted in a substantial saving in interest paid on warrants.

Moreover, he said, investments have been possible which have resulted in the district accruing interest payments.

The superintendent noted that during the prior fiscal year, the district had paid $35,000 in interest on warrants.

Warrant interest during the past year, he said, has amounted to only about $3,000.

Interest payments on bonds, meanwhile, amounted to only $26,000, he said, resulting in a net saving.

Vandalism at implement firm is investigated

PLAINVIEW, Minn. (Special) — The Wabasha County sheriff's office is investigating vandalism which occurred at the Kruger Implement Co. here early this morning or late Monday night.

Manager Gary Koblarcsik said that vandals broke at least two windows in a combine parked on the machinery lot and broke all of the gauges on three machines.

They tried to ignite cornstalks with a big ball of twine, but were unsuccessful. No damage estimate was available.

Quie aid may be sought in school bus fuel shortage

By C. GORDON HOLTE
Daily News Staff Writer

An appeal to Minnesota 1st District Cong. Albert H. Quie for possible assistance in coping with what has now become an acute fuel shortage in Winona Independent District 861 was suggested to the district school board Monday night.

Superintendent of Schools A. L. Nelson told directors that a second school bus operator had been advised Monday of a cutoff of his gasoline supply.

NELSON said that Val Kowalewski, whose buses serve the north half of the district, had been told by his supplier that no more gasoline would be available to him during the current shortage.

Last week Al Philipps, who contracts with the board for transportation of students south of Winona, had been told that his supply would be cut off with expiration last weekend of a purchase contract.

Nelson said that as yet the third bus operator, Dean Sufkins, had received no cut-off but noted that Sufkins transports the fewest number of students.

The superintendent said that he had been told by State Sen. Roger Laufenburger, Lewiston, that efforts to free gas supplies had been unsuccessful at the state level and Nelson suggested that Quie be contacted in an effort to have him intercede in the federal government.

KOWALEWSKI and Philipps, alone, need about 15,000 to 16,000 gallons of gasoline to maintain normal bus routings for the remainder of the year, Nelson said.

He said that it was his understanding that present supplies on hand would allow the two operators to maintain regular schedules for about two or three weeks.

The superintendent pointed out that both operators maintain large storage tanks that can accommodate deliveries in transport lots.

The superintendent said that the fuel problem as far as buses are concerned probably is compounded by the fact that bus operators normally obtain gasoline at reduced prices and that at present price levels, suppliers may be losing money on every gallon of gasoline delivered to bus operators.

He added, however, that both Kowalewski and Philipps had offered to pay a higher rate but that in each case their suppliers had held to the cut-off.

Since some 55 buses are operated within the school district, Nelson observed, the need for gasoline in large quantities is acute.

"I IMAGINE that if they really get up against it," Nelson commented, "the bus operators may be forced to go to service stations," noting, however, that purchasing from retail outlets might involve an additional expenditure of $1,500 or more in the remainder of the school year.

"What if they can't get it at a station?" board President Frank J. Allen asked, and Nelson replied, "Then I don't know what we could do."

Dr. C. H. Hopf, assistant superintendent of schools for secondary education, asked whether, if the shortage worsens, a curtailment of bus schedules within the city of Winona might ease the problem.

"Proportionately not to any great extent," Nelson answered, "since of the more than 50 routes, only about a dozen are within the city and these are comparatively short runs."

Another problem is being encountered in obtaining fuel oil for public school heating systems, Nelson added.

He said that he had received a letter from Gustafson Oil Co., Minneapolis, which has been supplying the schools with a major portion of its fuel oil for the past several years.

Gustafson, the superintendent said, had commented, "We believe that the events and conditions experienced during the past season are but a prediction of things to come."

NELSON SAID the fuel supplier also mentioned the fact that supplies of number five and six fuel oil, which have been in short supply the past few years, probably will become more plentiful.

The superintendent said that heating systems at Lincoln and Madison Elementary schools and Winona Junior High School can use number five and six fuel.

Experience in recent years, however, showed that number two fuel oil could be purchased at a lower cost than number five and six and that number two has been used.

The use of number two oil, Nelson pointed out, has resulted in cleaner flues at the buildings and cleaning of flues is

Location of polls discussed by board

Agreement that polling places for the May 15 annual school election be established at as many locations as necessary to make voting convenient for the greatest number of district residents was expressed Monday night by the district school board.

That could mean 10 or more, with the number in the city subject to determination during the coming week as to whether polls may be established outside boundaries of the district.

Poll location was considered during Monday's committee of the whole discussion of election plans this spring in the 1st and 5th districts.

OF PRIMARY concern was the situation in the 5th District, which includes all areas of District 861 outside the city of Winona with the exception of the village of Goodview and Sections 34 and 35 of Winona Township.

The 1st District includes Goodview; the 1st Precinct of the 1st Ward; the 2nd Precinct of the 1st Ward with the exception of St. Mary's College and Knopp's Addition and the 3rd Precinct of the 1st Ward with the exception of Wincrest Addition.

As far as the 1st District is concerned, tentative agreement was reached that voters in that district could be accommodated by having polls at Jefferson School, near the east boundary of the election district, and at Goodview Elementary School, near the west boundary.

Most of the discussion centered on the enlarged 5th District, which now extends from the Wabasha County line to the Houston County line and includes former Dakota District 2609 which was added to District 861 at the conclusion of consolidation proceedings late last year.

Superintendent of Schools A. L. Nelson said that the cost to the district for maintaining each polling place would amount to about $60.

THAT, PAUL W. Sanders, the board's business manager, explained, would cover the $17 paid each of the three election judges at each polling place, compensation for attending an instructional session and mileage allowances.

Logical potential polling places in the 5th District, the superintendent said, would include, to begin with, probably the Dakota, Ridgeway and Pickwick schools for the south end of the district and Rollingstone, Minnesota City and Stockton schools in the north.

He also said that the population of Dakota probably warranted a polling place there and that Homer was another possibility.

With the district enlarged, Kenneth P. Nelson, 1st District director, said "There are a lot of people who will be voting in our district for the first time and I think we should make it as convenient as possible for them to go to the polls."

Dr. C. W. Rogers, director at large, said that he felt that schools would be the best locations for the polls since residents are aware of the place where their children attend school.

Dr. Rogers suggested that perhaps Washington-Kosciusko School might be a good location for a 5th District polling place since a number of children from the 5th District attend classes there.

Superintendent Nelson said there might be a legal question as to whether polls for a district may be established outside the district. He will make inquiries to resolve that question before next week's board meeting.

DANIEL S. Sadowski, 4th District director, said he felt polls should be provided to afford convenient places for all voters and added, "After the election we can determine where the interest is and use that when we plan polls for future elections."

The superintendent pointed out that in city elections there are 16 polling places — one in each of the four precincts of each of the four wards — and observed, "If we were to have 10 or more polls it wouldn't be inconsistent with the city since we have a much wider area involved."

Board President Frank J. Allen, suggesting that additional study be given the matter for action at next Monday's meeting, said he thought the board should be "thinking about at least eight polling places and possibly more."

Board members agreed that voting hours from noon to 3 p.m. should be designated. That has been the policy in past years.

School board filing

Three-way race in 5th District

The contest for the 5th District School Board directorship in Winona Independent District 861's May 15 annual school election became a three-way race Monday afternoon with the announcement by Donald E. Gudbrandsen, Lamolite, Minn., of his candidacy.

The quality control manager at Lake Center industries here, Gudbrandsen became the third to file for the position now held by Dr. L. L. Korda.

DR. KORDA is not eligible to run for reelection from the 5th District since his residence, as a result of redistricting of the election districts, is now in the 3rd District.

Gudbrandsen, 42, joined Mrs. Paul Kronebusch, Rollingstone, Minn., and James N. Enga, Stockton Valley, as aspirants for the 5th District seat.

Gudbrandsen came to Winona seven years ago from Indiana to join Lake Center and lived in Winona for six years before moving to Lamolite last year.

He and his wife, Elaine, have two children, Sharon, 13, at tending Winona Junior High School, and Terri, 9, a student at Washington-Kosciusko School.

In filing, Gudbrandsen said he was seeking the office because he felt "responsible representation is needed in the 5th District."

GUDBRANDSEN WAS born in Lynn, Mass., served in the Navy from 1948 to 1957 and was graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1961 with a bachelor of science degree in engineering.

He has held managerial positions in quality control for A. G. Spalding and Bros., Inc., Remington Rand Library Bureau and National Homes.

He is an American Society for Quality Control certified engineer and a member of the American Society for Quality Control, American Society for Testing and Materials, American Statistical Association and Forest Products Research Society.

Gudbrandsen is a member of the Washington-Kosciusko School PTA, a former member of the Madison School PTA and is a former advancement chairman for the Gamehaven Council of Boy Scouts of America. Commenting on his bid for election, Gudbrandsen said:

"EDUCATION is the single most important thing we can give our children. Excellence in education is achieved through design and planning. If we are to plan for and achieve the goal of quality education, we must open communications to determine all involved factors; then with unbiased assessment of these factors take action.

"The vacancy left by Dr. Korda permits me to offer my services to aid in the attainment of this goal. I feel that I have the ability to serve the community in this capacity and therefore offer to serve."

DONALD GUDBRANDSEN

Manager suggests city build central garage

Winona City Manager Paul G. Schriever recommends that the city build a central garage for most vehicle storage and maintenance. His report to city councilmen suggests a site at the foot of Stone and Ben streets.

Among nine sites detailed in a 35-page study report, councilmen received Monday night is the current street department building, 201 Stone St., which is judged too small to accommodate the proposed two-section, 22,400-square-foot central garage and outdoor parking for heavy equipment.

Councilmen took no action on the recommendation but are expected to study the report before formal discussions.

THE NEW central garage site, Schriever's report adds, might include a new city dog pound if the chosen land is remote enough.

The report claims a central garage serving all but the fire department would be more efficient and eliminate wasted manpower and time. The city is under State Department of Labor and Industry notice to bring the existing street department building within the Industrial Code, including correcting ventilation and installing a rest-room ceiling with proper exhaust and ventilation.

Meat boycott has mixed effects locally

In the wake of skyrocketing meat prices across the country, Winonans have joined forces to attempt to do something in hopes that lower prices can be attained.

The nationwide boycott on meat buying which formally began Sunday has left many an area housewife seeking new recipes that do not include meat. Small unorganized groups of college students were observed frequenting local grocery markets over the weekend passing out literature designed to discourage the consumer from buying meats.

And on the other end of the meat battle stands the retailer, admitting that he is in a dilemma but saying he does not feel he should be taking all the blame.

The manager of one large local supermarket was quick to point out that his meat counter sales are down about 20 percent. He explained, however, that the decline began three weeks ago. As a result of less meat buying, the consumer is buying a little more cheese, fish and eggs. Asked if he thought the situation will worsen during the next few days, the manager said he really didn't think so, noting that he feels it has reached its peak.

THE STOREKEEPER did assert that the consumer must realize that prices are bound to go up in other related areas as a result of high meat prices. Examples, he said, will be the cost of cooking oils, shortenings, salad dressings and related goods.

One storekeeper noted that what was supposedly organized as a housewives boycott already has college students participating, "just because it's something to protest." One person commented that those passing out literature, haven't bought food in several months anyway. They just want to "do their thing again," he remarked.

A local meat specialty shop said, "absolutely not," when asked if they'd been affected by the recent meat boycott.

He said his sales are approximately the same as a year ago.

In the short run, the boycott might prove something, he admitted, but maintained that it would take a sustained boycott of meat to really see a drastic change. He said he felt that not only may the boycott have some effect, but indicated strongly that the NFO holding action plays a big part as well.

SEVERAL MARKET managers noted the fluctuating prices of pork on a day-to-day basis and told of changing the prices on the retail level as they continue to change on the wholesale market.

Several large market managers in the city refused comment when asked what effects they've felt since the beginning of the boycott. One said he couldn't say anything that was worth printing since the language would be a little "too strong." Another said that in the early stages of a boycott such as this, there is no way to really tell what is happening.

One supermarket manager noted that on a recent grocery "shopping" trip to La Crosse, Rochester and the Twin Cities, he found meat prices in those cities to be up about 20 percent over Winona's prices.

The manager of a small local meat market said he has not noticed any decline in meat sales since the beginning of the boycott. Business seems normal, he added, noting beef sales in general have been down since the last price increase, however, with consumers buying more pork and poultry.

THE MEAT BOYCOTT has met with varied reactions from Winona housewives. Some feel strongly that the boycott, in order to be effective, must receive cooperation from all consumers while others don't feel the need to serve meatless meals to their families in order to achieve a somewhat nebulous goal.

One housewife said that after due consideration, she has decided not to boycott meat.

Another housewife said that while she has decided to go along with the boycott by serving soups, sandwiches and fish to her family, the recent ads for sale prices on meats have been quite tempting. She has, however, decided to remain with her decision to boycott.

A young mother of two has decided not to boycott meat because she feels that meat prices have not risen as much as wages in the past ten years. A checker at a local grocery store, she commented that she has not noticed any appreciable difference in the amount of meat bought so far this week.

She did, however, note that last week a group of persons were gathered outside the store handing out boycott literature featuring recipes for no-meat hot dishes.

Another young mother said that she simply was not going to the grocery store this week. She is using what she has on hand and is serving more fish, both fresh and canned. She commented that she does feel meat prices are too high and hopes the boycott will help in bringing prices down.

A FATHER OF three children and an avid fisherman commented that his family was boycotting meat and eating fish this week. He, too, hopes the boycott will be effective.

Still another young mother who feeds four people says that she did buy more meat last week than normal and as a result will not buy meat this week. She remarked that the boycott is an excellent idea and noted that it is well overdue. Since her family does enjoy the traditional American hamburger, the young woman said she has been experimenting with soybean protein substitute, with favorable results.

Interview scares Wilson

NEW YORK — I'm asking you. Should I interview a beautiful (and shapely) movie star in the nude? Striking a bold blow for freedom of the press, I challenged lovely Cheri Caffaro to sit naked for an interview since she'd been nude for magazine photographers. She refused. Now, changing her mind, she's said, "Yes" — and scared the pants off of me.

My teeth are chattering like my typewriter. "Do I have the guts? Will I have to do it blindfolded? What'll people say?"

I was very brave when I thought she'd refuse. "You're discriminating against newspaper and reporters." I thundered. UNFAIR, UNFAIR!

I fought the good fight for a free press alone, unencouraged. Never any help from crusader columnists. No pat on the back from editors. How courageous I was, goading Cheri (who's getting known as a film sleuth called "Ginger"). ... When Cheri said yes, I blubbered, "You sure she wants to? ... Won't her husband object? ... Won't people think she's being too forward? ... Has she thought it over carefully?"

Maybe my Beautiful Wife'd veto it. "You got into it, now get out of it! What are you scared of?"

"We'll be in a hotel room — all alone!" I almost whimpered. "I'm gonna ask my readers."

"They're going to enjoy seeing you get your bluff called!"

We've set the date, Cheri and I have: April 11. "I'll be a journalistic first," I keep telling myself. "And maybe a journalistic last."

Do you think Marlon Brando did right? Couldn't he have appealed for the Indians in person, accepted the Oscar and made it the symbol of a movement? Julie Newman said (at the opening of Rex Harrison's "Emperor Henry IV") that just to meet Brando would be life's great experience

... It struck me that Marlon is not an Indian-giver but an Indian-receiver. Bob Taplinger says Marlon wants to be the Great White Godfather.

Comedian Jack E. Leonard's at Mt. Sinai Hospital after collapsing from exhaustion at the Rainbow Grill, but is expected back soon. Phil Foster stepped in, joining singer Carolyn Daye ... Dinah Shore wore an Indian turquoise necklace that Burt Reynolds gave her last week at a party here for her terms tournament ... Security wouldn't let photos get close to Veep Agnew at the Dooley foundation dinner: had to shoot from the balcony.

David Mahoney gave a 12-course Chinese dinner for 500 at the Museum of Art, promoting the Shenyang Acrobatic Troupe TV special. First 9 courses were delicious: "I ducked after the duck ... Peggy Lee's upset by a story Peggy Lee got married by phone. Was another Peggy Lee. "Not getting married, period," says Peggy at the Waldorf Empire Room ... Socialite Laura Johnson lost a 2-inch long gold and jeweled ring at Sexy Rexy's opening.

"Seesaw" is becoming the "In" show. Katherine Hepburn saw it, also the Jason Robards Jr.s; Ethel Merman's seen it twice ... Bobby Darin, who was signed for the Waldorf when Carol O'Connor canceled, has become a dropout too; previous film commitment's claimed.

Mary Martin may return to NY in June to discuss a TV special ... Fred Finklehoffe will produce a comedy, "Great Day at the Race," and the legendary Jed Harris'll return to B'way to direct it ... The cast of "The Women" went to Philadelphia in a huge bus, but Myrna Loy decided to travel by train ... A young actress complained about her small role in a raunchy off-B'way play: "I have even less to say than I have to wear."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The art of marriage is to wear your handcuffs as if they were bracelets."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Lou Jacobi said that an actor has three salaries: "The one he thinks he ought to get, the one he really gets, and the one he reports on his tax return."

EARL'S PEARLS: One reason there are so many overweight people is that there are more folks giving up diets than giving up food.

Comic Freddie Roman was offered $4,000 a week in Las Vegas and asked for $5,000; the hotel signed another comic. "It's the first time," signed Freddie, "that I ever lost $4,000 in Las Vegas without going there." That's earl, brother.

DON McLEAN'S SONG KILLS HER SOFTLY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roberta Flack's current hit "Killing Me Softly with His Song" is said by Don McLean's press agent to have been inspired by McLean.

The idea for the song came from its writers, Norman Gimbel and Charles Fox, who developed it further from singer Lori Lieberman's description of her feelings toward McLean's songs.

Miss Lieberman recorded the song, Roberta Flack heard it on an airplane and decided to record it. Her version became the No. 1-selling single in the United States in early March.

By court refusal

Pipeline dispute delayed

By STAN BENJAMIN
WASHINGTON (AP) — With its seven-word refusal to review the Alaska pipeline case, the U.S. Supreme Court has postponed a legal showdown over the project for at least several months.

The next move is up to Congress, which is considering legislation to remove the right-of-way restrictions imposed by a 1920 law.

The Supreme Court's action Monday means that the separate issue of the proposed pipeline's environmental impacts, which might have been considered simultaneously if the court had ordered it, now must wait its turn in court until Congress has completed action on the right-of-way aspect.

Spokesmen for the government, construction industry and environmental groups agreed the decision would cause further delays in the pipeline case, which already has dragged on in the courts three years ago.

In 1968, a huge oil field was discovered on Alaska's frozen Arctic shores. A group of oil companies asked the Interior Department in 1969 for permission to build an 800-mile pipeline across the federal government's vast land holdings in Alaska. The companies, now represented by the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., want to transport the oil to a port on Alaska's southern coast, and from there by tanker ships to the U.S. West Coast.

Three environmental groups, the Environmental Defense Fund, Friends of the Earth, and the Wilderness Society, claimed Interior had not submitted an environmental impact assessment of the project, as required by law.

U.S. District Court Judge George A. Hart held up pipeline construction until, more than two years later, Interior produced what it said was a final environmental statement. Hart lifted the injunction.

The environmental groups took their case to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here, on two main grounds: that the impact statement gave insufficient consideration to an all-land pipeline route through Canada; and that the 1920 Mineral Leasing Act allowed too narrow a right-of-way for construction of the huge, modern pipeline.

Last Feb. 9, the appeals court blocked the pipeline because of the right-of-way restrictions. Anticipating lengthy congressional consideration of amendments to the right-of-way law, the court said also it was too early to settle the environmental question.

Kidnapers hold boy, 3 men in Argentina

By LOUIS UCHITELLE
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Kidnapers are holding three men and a boy in Argentina. Each was abducted separately.

The victims are Antony R. DaCruz, technical operations manager for Eastman Kodak Co. in Argentina and the first American kidnaped in the country; retired Rear Adm. Francisco Agustin Aleman; Gerardo Scalma, an Argentine branch manager of the First National Bank of Boston; and Angel Fabiani, 16-year-old son of a wealthy Buenos Aires businessman.

DaCruz and Aleman were kidnaped Monday and authorities said leftist political groups were responsible. Fabiani also was kidnaped Monday, but members of his family said his abductors were believed to be common criminals interested only in a big ransom. Scalma was kidnaped last Wednesday in Rosario, but it has not been determined whether his seizure had political overtones.

About six or eight young men ran a pickup truck into DaCruz's car near the Kodak plant in a Buenos Aires suburb, pulled DaCruz out, and drove off in another vehicle, witnesses told police. Authorities said the 43-year-old executive may have been hurt.

A Kodak official said the kidnapers telephoned and identified themselves as members of a leftist guerrilla organization but had not made ransom demands yet.

A company spokesman said DaCruz was born in Portugal, got a graduate degree from the University of Minnesota, and has worked for Kodak in Rochester, N.Y., and in various Latin American countries. He is a naturalized U.S. citizen; his wife is a Greek who studied at the University of Minnesota, and they have a son at school in Britain.

Adm. Aleman was seized before dawn at his downtown apartment by three young members of the People's Revolutionary Army who tied up his wife and son. The navy said a nephew of the 50-year-old admiral was among the kidnapers.

They're paid for sleeping on job

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four healthy young men are being paid $100 a week for lying flat on their backs in bed for nine months.

They are volunteers in a research project on how to maintain healthy bone growth balance in prolonged space flight, as in a two-year mission to Mars.

Loss of calcium from the skeletal bones is a major health threat from the prolonged weightlessness that space voyagers would encounter, says Dr. Stephen Hulley, project director at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital here.

Prolonged bed rest helps produce the effects of weightlessness and results in a lag in the body's normal production of new bone tissue.

The loss of essential calcium deposits in the bones produces a condition called osteoporosis. Bones become brittle and weakened. Simple fractures are a serious hazard.

The current four bed volunteers are the latest group in a total of 40 young men studied in the project financed over the last five years by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Hulley is testing on them a diet supplement of phosphate and calcium tablets.

Two of the men receive approximately double the normal intake of both mineral elements. The two others — the control group — get none.

Hulley said a previous test group showed no loss of calcium through the first three months of bed rest. He said the protection against calcium depletion appeared to break down in the fourth month.

The experiment now is being repeated to extend over a nine-month period, ending in September. Two men will take diet supplement pills the first half, then get none. The other two will take the pills during the last half of the test period only.

Two of the volunteers are jobless San Francisco men. Two others are serving terms at Safford federal prison.

Winona Aviation Service names new manager

Myron Swenson Jr. has been named manager of Winona Aviation Service, Inc., based at Max Conrad Field.

The 24-year-old former assistant manager at Viking Aviation, Inc., La Crosse, Wis., has assumed his new duties and said today the company plans to expand service.

Winona Aviation, he said, will again be a Piper Aircraft Corp. dealer and soon will buy a Piper Cherokee 140 trainer. It plans to offer flight instruction, aircraft hangar storage, ground school courses, aircraft maintenance facilities, reinstated veterans flight training and air taxi charter operations.

Swenson said the firm is applying for Veterans Administration approval on the flight training school and Federal Aviation Administration certification for air taxi service.

He said the ground school course will use the new PIP (Piper Instructional Program). The company will continue to use both Cessna and Piper aircraft, he said.

Expect light voter turnout in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Prospects of a strong voter turnout in Wisconsin's general election today were little brighter than the skies.

A forecast of rain and possible snow with temperatures in the 30s and low 40s accompanied a ballot which contained only two state elections and two state referenda.

Leo Fahey, state elections supervisor, said municipal and county elections, and some local referenda, might have better success than the state elections in inspiring the energies of the electorate.

But even this promise was offset somewhat by a report from Milwaukee County that its local number of registered voters had actually decreased somewhat since the March 6 primary, and for no particular reason.

The county's election officials predicted no more than 25 percent of its 528,125 eligible voters would turn out.

Fahey said Wisconsin has 2.84 million eligible voters. Only 407,000 voted March 6, and he said the figure customarily doubles for the subsequent general election.

That would mean approximately 815,000 voters. The last comparable election was in the spring of 1969, when a State Supreme Court election drew about 728,000 votes and election of a state superintendent of public instruction attracted 706,000.

There were five referenda issues in April, 1969. The one drawing the most votes, more than 701,000, was an advisory referendum on whether the state ought to assume full financial responsibility for community technical schools.

By comparison, the vote in the November, 1970, general election was more than 1.34 million when the ballot included Capitol executive, legislative and congressional contests.

The school superintendent's post is again on the ballot today, but without an incumbent.

Ernest J. Korpela, a Washburn school administrator who turned state legislator in the 1960s, was competing for the job against Dr. Barbara Thompson, an administrative consultant in the superintendent's Department of Public Instruction.

There was a State Supreme Court contest, in which Justice Bruce F. Beilfuss was seeking another 10-year term. His opponent was West Allis attorney Robert J. Beaudry.

The two state-level referenda involved amendments to the state Constitution concerning bingo and women's rights.

Voters were asked whether clubs and churches should be allowed by the legislature to sponsor bingo gambling.

In the other referendum, voters were asked to approve an equal rights amendment similar to one proposed for the U.S. Constitution and guaranteeing sexual bias would not interfere with equitable application of civil rights.

Local election ballots included referenda in five cities concerning municipal operation or subsidy of mass transit.

Nine counties were electing judges, and four Circuit Courts representing 10 counties were electing judges.

There were elections of mayors in 17 cities, some county courthouse contests and several school board elections.

Let's shoot down a myth about tracks

Whenever it's suggested that railroad tracks in Winona should be moved, people throw up their hands and say, you can't make the railroads move. Not even God can.

Well, one of these days — make that years — it's likely that you will no longer need to dodge a railroad train when you drive on East 2nd Street. That photograph above may become an historical curiosity.

What's required is: An unhappy neighborhood (191 along the 12 blocks signed a petition circulated by Gertrude Rakauskas last July); an unhappy city government (depressed and deteriorating trackage create an aggravating maintenance problem for both the city and the railroad), and a railroad which needs to be persuaded of the economic benefits of getting out of the street.

Since that petition last summer Cong. Quile has become involved, as has the Minnesota Public Service Commission and the Federal Railroad Administration, as have, of course, the City Council and the Burlington Railroad, which has been running its trains down East 2nd since the council passed an ordinance in 1886.

The railroad seems agreeable to the change. Meetings have been held, letters exchanged, assurances given. It seems the railroad is convinced it will be cheaper to abandon 2nd Street and arrange a connection with existing North Western trackage on East Front rather than to rebuild the existing trackage on 2nd.

What may be required is acquisition of right of way for an alley two blocks east of Franklin, between 2nd and Front, plus a link with the North Western just east of Liberty, plus a spur on Chestnut to Front to serve Watkins Products. Such costs would be borne by the railroad.

AT PRESENT the Burlington is preparing a plan. Donald H. King, Burlington vice president, has told City Manager Paul G. Schriever in a letter that Burlington realizes it must improve the existing trackage but — here's the hope — "I can certainly visualize the undesirable conflict of a continued rail operation with vehicular traffic on 2nd Street. It seems to me a little time spent now could prove to be a tremendous benefit in the future."

More is involved here than removal of trackage, although that can't be minimized. Removal or abandonment would permit the city to rebuild the street with state aid funds; to install curb and gutter, and to complete a link in a car-truck route that would extend from Highway 61-14 and Pelzer in the west end, down Crooked Slough Dike road, onto West 2nd Street, to East 2nd and then onto a dike road (still to be constructed) and Bundy Boulevard to Highway 61-14 near the city's eastern limits.

Should this relocation be accomplished we'd still have those Milwaukee-Burlington connector tracks on residential Wall Street, and we'd still have those miles of Milwaukee tracks running through the city from east to west, but we would have made a beginning to destroy the myth that railroad tracks can't be moved. — A.B.

Let's not make veterans bonus too complicated

A Minneapolis legislator raised the question the other day whether non-Vietnam veterans should receive the voter-approved Vietnam War bonus. He was suggesting no pay unless a soldier or sailor or Marine had touched down in Vietnam.

We hope the legislature doesn't make this distinction. First of all, it was a general bonus that the voters approved; second, those who volunteered or were drafted into the service for Vietnam exposed themselves equally to duty there; third, the stateside and overseas servicemen were equally jerked out of civilian pursuits.

It is tradition in bonus payments not to make the distinction proposed by the Minneapolis legislator. There might be merit in an add-on for combat duty, but such distinctions unnecessarily complicate what the voters intended to be a simple "thank-you-all." — A.B.

Brando at Wounded Knee

Marlon Brando decided to go to Wounded Knee.

We got that intelligence originally from Miss Shashen Littlefeather herself, who, representing the Native American Affirmative Image Committee, declined Mr. Brando's Oscar for him. A native American is an Indian, for those of you who came in after the 17th century. It isn't clear what Brando's mission in Wounded Knee is to be, but it is clear that he is on the side of the Indians — on the grounds that Indians have been mistreated by the movies.

Marlon Brando wears the moroseness of the human race heavily on his shoulders. It is a lucky accident of nature that in the past he has been laconic not only on the screen but off it. One wonders whether he is now casting off his inhibitions, even as he did his pants, in his last movie, resolving to become Mr. Jane Fonda. One social encephalophone from Hollywood is rather a lot as it is and one can only hope therefore that on reaching Wounded Knee, Brando will have buried himself deeply there, and be adopted by the Oglala Sioux, whom he can instruct in the devil-law of the white man.

BRANDO'S Oscar was for his portrayal of "The Godfather," the Mafia head who looked after his family and friends by shooting and torturing those who stood in his way. I have not seen any picture at the expense of savage American Indians which goes much further than "The Godfather" does against predatory Italians, but Brando has solved that problem. You see, the Mafia are simply typical Americans. Here is Brando on the point during a recent interview: "I think (The Godfather) is about the corporate mind. In a way, the Mafia is the best example of capitalists we have. Don Corleone is just an ordinary American business magnate who is trying to do the best he can for the group he represents and for his family."

Don Corleone, you will remember, is the Godfather whose agents slaughter agents of a competing family with machine guns, knives, garrotes, and poison. Just the way Colonel Sanders, the corporate magnate, treats other people who try to sell friend chicken.

Brando is anxious that you should thoroughly understand his point and if he had difficulties in making it during the interview it must have been because Miss Littlefeather wasn't there to help him out. Look, he said, "I think the tactics the Don used aren't much different from those General Motors used against Ralph Nader."

THE DON executed his rivals and tossed them into the East River. General Motors sent someone to follow Ralph Nader around, and for its pains paid several hundred thousand dollars to Nader for invading his privacy. But the distinction blurs in the inflated nifty-mind of our morose activist. . . "unlike some corporate heads," Brando went on, "Corleone has an unwavering loyalty for the people that have given support to him and his causes and he takes care of his own."

In other words, there is in fact a difference between the Mafia and American businessmen. The Mafia are more loyal. "Don Corleone is a man of deep principle and the natural question arises as to how such a man can countenance the killing of people." Well, that question does arise, doesn't it? But Brando will give you the answer, in case you didn't learn it at college. "But the American government does the same thing for reasons that are not much different from those of the Mafia." Thus the Mafia's motives in killing and torturing for profit are to be compared with the American government's motives in Vietnam, which venture cost us about 200 billion dollars and got us as profit . . . but we must not cavil. The Native American Image Committee requires that the non-Native American Image Committee acquiesce in suggesting that American businessmen and American statesmen are to be compared to the Mafia.

THE INDIANS, whom Brando has befriended, have suffered a great deal from the white man. It may be true that we have been parsimonious in our compensation to the Indians, but if so, we treated Napoleon a lot worse. Jefferson paid Napoleon 15 million dollars for the Louisiana Territory, and over the years, for parts of the same territory, we would pay the Indians a further 300 million, which would suggest, by such reckonings as Brando is capable of understanding, that we are 20 times as anti-French as anti-Indian.

And anyway we are in fact listening carefully to minority claims. Not long ago a suit was filed in federal court in Denver against the United States by 28 descendants of early Mexican grant holders. Their lawyer, a former United States Attorney for Colorado, is no ordinary nut. A reasonable man, he has indicated a willingness to settle with the United States for one trillion dollars. Will Brando file a brief and sue curiae? The poor Indians. They have suffered so much. They should be spared the patronage of Marlon Brando.

Seasoning

I think that I shall never see
A cook who seasons just like me
When making noodles, beef, or rice
I season not at all, or twice.
The phone or doorbell rings,
and then
When I return to cook again
I find, somehow, that I forget
If I have added seasoning yet.
'Tis then I sample, and in haste
I burn my tongue so I can't taste
Then season once more as I should
And hope that he will say it's good!

Labor forced Nixon on food price freeze

William S. White

or toleration of labor is a sheer must.

It is a must, moreover, on issues far different from that of inflation. Labor supplied the critical margin to the President's "new majority" in the election of last year. He dare not, he cannot, lose labor now on such vital and wholly separated questions as his military budget and his bombing policy in Cambodia.

SO WHEN MR Nixon changed his mind on meat price controls, he did so with the boycotting and banner-waving housewives at the back of his mind but with men like

The dramatic way to put it is to say that President Nixon's decision to clamp on meat price controls resulted from the well-advertised "housewives revolt" in front of the supermarkets.

The real way to put it is to say that the President bowed not so much to the pressure of the women, however unwise it may be said to be to underestimate their power, as to the far more decisive pressure of the labor leaders.

Though he has not gone all the way to meet the demands of such muscular characters as George Meany of the AFL-CIO, the President has nevertheless given much more than an inch or two. He is opening a cool collective bargaining dialogue with Meany and Company for compelling reasons that go far beyond the cost of beef or even the cost of living in general.

THE FUNDAMENTAL fact here is that Mr. Nixon has recognized and accepted the central reality of current national politics. This is that while, of course, he wants the support of consumers as a class he simply must have the support, or at least the toleration, of organized labor to save his whole wide campaign against inflation — and much more besides.

In short, for the first time in history a Republican President caught in an economic box is looking for his absolutely indispensable allies not the GOP's traditional ally of big business but rather to big labor.

If push came to shove Mr. Nixon could get along here without business, though as a matter of fact he will not have to do so. But the favor

Therefore great resentment exists against the mere thought of re-creating serious armed strength, apart from modest self-defense forces. "Nobody," he says, "could win an election on the issue of constitutional revision to permit greater military power."

With this in mind, he insists, there is no fundamental difference between Tokyo and Washington and no contradiction in their views on China and Russia. He adds: "Not a single Japanese diplomatic action is taken on these matters without prior consultation and agreement with the United States." (This apparent lack of resentment at the so-called "Nixon shocks" is not shared by all Tanaka's Cabinet, notably Foreign Trade Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone).

WITH RESPECT to China, a country toward which Japan feels a guilt complex and whose culture is viewed as Rome once viewed that of Athens, the premier is convinced Peking has no aspiration for superpower status. He says: "That is what they told President Nixon and what they subsequently told me."

Moreover, one-third of China's long frontier with Russia and India is restless and undefined. The Chinese population is rising at perhaps 2 percent annually. Yet the Gross National Product is only half of Japan's. Therefore they must concentrate on internal development. If China had truly wanted to be a global superpower it would not have encouraged the North Vietnamese to end their war."

Tokyo welcomes China's support in the Japanese dispute with Russia over territory seized by Moscow in 1945. Four small islands in the Kur-

George Meany at the very front of his mind. Meany had made it plain that big labor, which has contracts involving hundreds of thousands of men up for renegotiation this year, would accept no real wage restraints unless the President moved against the prices labor must pay for goods.

This was, however, only a small warning shot. What Meany was really saying was that if the President wanted continued labor assistance on matters having very little to do with beef or lamb he would first have to move against table inflation. Mr. Nixon, whose pragmatic approach has so often been shown in foreign policy, had no difficulty in grasping the point.

HE HAD always been philosophically against price controls; he now wryly accepts price controls as another kind of price. This is the price for his continued ability to run a viable administration all across the board. In the end it is all one ball of wax — Cambodia, meat, and the rest — when it comes to the President's need to maintain a public consensus.

The hard-hats came only late and reluctant to his table in the first place. They disliked him on bread-and-butter issues; and still do for that matter. Yet, they liked him very much, and still do, on so much else — his refusal to cut and run in Vietnam, his hard line against the draft dodgers and deserters, his whole stance against social permissiveness. If ever they leave his table it will never be he who told them to depart.

files are claimed by Japan. Tanaka says not only that Peking endorses this claim but that its press has written the entire Kuriles group should be handed back, something not even Tokyo has asked for.

The premier contends the Soviet government has not changed its attitude on this matter since 1957 when it offered to return two of the islands if Japan would agree to negotiate the status of the other two. He could not possibly "go back 15 years" on the issue he insists. Therefore it would be difficult for him to visit Moscow at this time as suggested by the Kremlin.

NEVERTHELESS, he was prepared to separate the diplomatic question from the economic question raised by Russia's suggestion that Japan assist in development of Siberian natural gas and petroleum resources. The latter proposal could be dealt with on its merits, in terms of the precise conditions offered by Moscow and also in terms of the reactions of Peking, which is suspicious of Soviet intentions.

To summarize, Tanaka seems to place great reliance on continued U.S. understanding and support and also to hope for developing Chinese sympathy and diplomatic backing. Toward the USSR his attitude seems to be dichotomous.

On the one hand he obviously desires an arrangement that would open to booming Japan new and relatively contiguous energy sources. On the other hand, he prefers political coolness until the territorial question is resolved.

New action on abortion issue

There is developing in the Minnesota Legislature a little noticed effort to revise the U.S. Constitution and make a fertilized egg equivalent to a human person.

This action is in the form of the constitutional amendment known as HF 479 which would define personhood as beginning from the moment of conception and is an attempt to overthrow the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision on abortion. The current law permits people of all shades of belief the opportunity to act in accordance with their religious and moral conscience.

Many of us who support a woman's right to abortion on request believe that passage of such an amendment would sow the seeds of religious warfare in our country similar to the present situation in Northern Ireland which is a modern day example of how people use religious power for political ends.

So far the amendment has sailed through the House Health and Welfare Committee and appears likely to pass the full legislature unless citizens who object to this speak out. I urge all who believe in religious freedom to contact their legislators and urge defeat of this measure.

The danger of riding bicycles in nighttime

Now that spring is here and the bicycles are out in force I would like to voice my feelings about something that has happened to me many times and again last evening.

As I was driving home from downtown after dark, there were suddenly two boys (I believe they were boys) on bicycles crossing the street in front of me. They had no lights, no reflectors, dark clothes and even dark-colored bikes. I was going slow enough that by braking I avoided hitting them. However, if I had hit one of them who would be responsible for the cost of any injury or damage? Of course, I would, since I was driving the "big bad car."

I realize that there will always be some who are careless on bikes as there are drivers of cars who are careless. But at least in daylight or with lights on the vehicles you stand a chance of avoiding accidents. I know that the police

Boys Choir provides a pleasant evening

There are very few good boy-choirs in the United States. Fewer still capable of preparing for and embarking on a 10-week tour of the U.S. and Canada.

So, when the Texas Boys Choir presented its program Saturday evening before a sizable Community Concert audience at the Junior High School auditorium, we considered ourselves fortunate to be hearing a boy choir at all. One must admit that Winona is a bit off the beaten path of an international tour.

BUT HEAR them we did, and, while the performance wasn't note-perfect, it was presented with energy and remarkable competence. In the opening minutes of the program, for example, the choir demonstrated the style with a Gregorian chant, an unaccompanied motet, and the fast rhythm of a Spanish carol. All were elegantly sung.

The boys, ranging in age from 11-15, were attired in stylish red and white high-collared robes for this portion of the concert, and their movements between the numbers were graceful as well as natural.

I was disappointed that such a veteran as founder-director George Bragg, now in his 27th year with the Texas Boys Choir, would order the house lights raised for the only major work of the evening so the audience might follow the printed text in the program. Any excitement that had been generated by the first few numbers was suddenly lost and the choir had cheated itself out of the complete attention it deserved from its listeners.

THE SECOND half of the concert was entertaining, but somewhat simple musically. The choir performed a cute suite entitled "A Mother Goose Concert," containing nearly every childhood tune imaginable; a series of songs from the Lionel Bart musical "Oliver," and a Ray Charles suite called "The Continental Soldier."

Only this last could be classified as being professionally done, though there were many moments when the boy-choir was excellent. "The Continental Soldier" employed dazzling costumes, some rather nice choreography and well-executed music. It was a smashing finale to a pleasurable evening's entertainment.

Please make sure their lights work and that they wear lighter clothing or reflector tape on their bikes and/or clothes. I don't want to hurt a child or see one hurt by someone else, but at the same time I don't feel I should be held liable for something which was caused by the child's or his parent's carelessness.

Tenure and teachers backed

Dr. Max Rafferty

Q—"Aren't you making a whipping boy out of the teacher tenure laws when the problem is really something else? In Pennsylvania, a tenured teacher can be fired for immorality or incompetence. The fly in the ointment is that either the administrators or the school board must initiate the action, and herein lies the hooker."

"In our school system, a daughter of a board member was hired as a 'social studies' teacher. She was single, but soon showed up pregnant. She made her exit, had her child and some time later was recycled into the system, but not as a social studies teacher where the parents might have taken issue with her teaching their young daughters. No, sir, she was rehired as a remedial reading specialist, although she had no qualifications at all."

"You see, teacher tenure would have allowed her to be fired for immorality, but the administration and the school board were the ones who failed their community, not the tenure law." — S. E. H., Spruce Creek, Pa.

A—No law, no school system, no educational philosophy are worth a plugged nickel if they are being administered by jerks. As I've said before, Alexander Pope summed it up, once and for all: "For forms of government let fools contest; Whate'er is best administered is best."

Q—"A year ago, you wrote something negative about a professor at the University of Delaware, who won your 'Jerkass of the Year' award. Now would you like to write something positive about another professor at the same university?"

"Here's the story: 'The boy had developed a love of learning in general, and of physics in particular, although for several reasons it seemed unlikely that he would go on to college. Frustrations multiplied, but fortunately he was directed to a man in the physics department of the University of Delaware, a man who was made for someone with a

"The boy later went on to the University of Illinois, where he graduated with the highest honors at 19 with a bachelor of science in physics. Subsequently he passed the exam for the Ph.D. at Princeton at the age of 21."

"The professor is Dr. John W. Priest. The boy is William Shanahan of Chesapeake City, Md. The reasons for his earlier uncertainties and apprehensions are easily summed up: cerebral palsy, no money, no social prestige."

"End of story." — W. A. S., Chesapeake City, Md.

WASHINGTON — The good news in Washington last week was that crime had dropped in the capital by 50 percent. There is some question about the figures released because certain crimes committed in Washington were not included in the statistics. Had they been, the optimism about the decline might be considered premature.

Here are some of the crimes not reported in Washington in 1972: Housebreaking at the Watergate Hotel was up 100 percent.

Illegal bugging of politicians increased 73 percent. While officials explained the upsurge in this crime was due to a presidential election year, law-and-order advocates feel the rate of illegal bugging will continue because of the permissiveness of bleeding-heart Justice Department lawyers.

Acts of perjury in front of grand juries, Senate committees and in civil cases reached an all-time high, surpassing even the record made during the four years of the Harding Administration.

Attempts to intimidate witnesses and obstruct justice were up 23 percent. Destruction of subpoenaed documents and paper shredding of crucial evidence increased 33 percent.

The rape of Public Television continued unabated and blackmail of TV station owners broke all previous records.

ADMINISTRATION assaults on the networks were up 43 percent over 1971.

Crimes of passion against newspaper correspondents hit new record highs and the mugging of news sources tripled under the Nixon Administration.

Armed robbery of the American taxpayer by the military-industrial complex showed a 34 percent rise over 1971—a previous record year for this type of crime. Because very few of the military-industrial complex holdups are reported, law-enforcement experts do not see any chance that this type of crime will go down. (When one government employee reported that Lockheed was robbing the public blind, he was immediately fired.)

Although more police have been added in Washington, pollution violators have been getting away with murder. It is now estimated that there are 14,901 unsolved pollution crimes on the books, with an average of 75 being committed every day.

While street crime was down, crimes associated with executive privilege were up by 13 percent.

POLITICAL fund-raising frauds also broke all records, but there have been no prosecutions by the government because of a shortage of watchdogs. Illegal arrests of demonstrators were down, thanks to the end of the Vietnamese war, but unconstitutional surveillance of American citizens continued to rise.

Bribery in the form of campaign contributions doubled during 1972 and the smuggling of cash contributions for immoral purposes across state lines increased by 74 percent.

Aggravated assaults on Congress by the President were up 54 percent and premeditated vetoes of legislation broke all records.

While President Nixon has expressed concern with the increases in all types of crime, he still considers criticism of his Administration the No. 1 crime problem in the country today. It has become so serious that he is studying the possibility of bringing back capital punishment.

Spiritual sustenance most important factor, says POW

By CAPT JEREMIAH A. DENTON, JR., USN
As Told to KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

In looking back over all the challenges and trials of my experience as a POW, I believe the spiritual sustenance attained through others' prayers, and my own was the most important factor in my survival. I believe most POWs feel the same way. Almost all of us are at peace with ourselves now. From what I observed of the performance of others, I believe the main lesson to be learned is that human nature is capable of remarkable performance when placed under duress.

There was a time in October

1966, while I was at the Zoo (a POW camp) in torture, when I just turned myself over to God and I have never had a prayer answered so spectacularly in my life.

A persuasive but sinister officer had put pressure on me to stop inciting the others. He finally gave up on the soft approach and had me put in a torture rig for five days. It was very painful. He wanted me to write something about the communications system between the prisoners in the camp. At the end of five days I wrote something harmless about communications which I knew wouldn't give away anything they already didn't know. I hoped they would accept it because they would have saved face by getting me to write just something. But they didn't buy it. They put me back in the same rig for five more days and that was the time at which I simply told God He would just have to take over. I had reached the end.

I knew that if I had to write the next time I would write something harmful, so I just turned myself over to Him. I have never had a prayer answered so spectacularly in my life.

As soon as I got that prayer out, this mantle of comfort came over me and I couldn't feel any more pain. Even when they beat the hell out of me and tightened up right to the maximum, I was just as comfortable as if I were sitting in a plush auto.

Despite all the torture and mistreatment we received as prisoners of war, I would not now personally oppose reconstruction aid to North Vietnam, as I understand it is envisioned by the president.

I think that such aid would be world-recognized as an act taken in the interests of peace, containing some element of Christian forgiveness.

The act should not be interpreted as excusing or condoning in any way either the aggression against South Vietnam or the mistreatment they applied to us.

I'm just as much in favor of bombing the hell out of them if they start misbehaving. For example, if the present moves of the DRV (Democratic Republic of Vietnam) portend further aggression against South Vietnam, I would favor most positive military action to oppose it.

And I regret that we did not use more shock in the initial application of military force during the war.

By escalating slowly as we did, we simply conditioned the North Vietnamese rather than shocking them with the full import of our resolve and the fullness of belief in our cause.

I believe they value quite highly the aid they might get from the United States, which could remove the stimulus that the DRV government may feel to grab aggressively for some necessities.

If they didn't have that necessity, I doubt that, even with the tight security situation, the people would support a DRV government effort to rouse the people to more bloodletting, especially with U.S. resolve finally having been demonstrated.

Also in many respects the prospects of Southeast Asian war seem to have been overcome by events through the establishment of rapport between the United States and China and better U.S.-Russian relations.

You've got North Vietnam kind of left out on a limb by itself. Their main stimulus now is to get a little of that rice bowl in the South, trying to get some of that fruit down there, so they can live and have a little more dignity. If both sides observe the agreement, including the aid part, the south and north can get what they need without war.

If they can get that from the United States, in terms of the three-four-five billion dollars President Nixon is talking about — a fraction of the budget we were putting out for the war year by year — I think we would have accomplished a great thing in preserving peace.

100 attend T & I banquet in Lake City

LAKE CITY, Minn. (Special) — More than 100 attended the T & I banquet of the Vocational Industrial Club of America in the Lincoln High School cafeteria here.

The dinner was sponsored by the T & I students for parents, employers and trainers.

Twenty-four Lincoln High students are enrolled in the on-the-job training cooperative education program, in which Lake City businesses are cooperating. Arlan Johnson is the instructor-adviser.

Joe Charette, the club's vice president, read the invocation. James Klassen, vice principal of Alexander Ramsey High School, Roseville, Minn., spoke on "What's Right with America."

"Problem kids get most of the attention and publicity," said Klassen. "All the good youths are doing is not often mentioned. We should get the youth into the right perspective and look at the good things they do," he said.

Addressing the students directly, he said: "What's right in America — you're what's right!"

Entertainment was provided by Faith Guest, Don McNeer and Frank Sprout, who each sang a selection from the spring vocal concert, directed by Robert Ruberto.

Ardis Eggenberger was chairman of the group's fifth banquet.

Tom Dwelle is club president; Cheryl Koch, secretary, and Rodney Eischen, treasurer.

One-cent gasoline tax increase is approved

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A one-cent increase in the gasoline tax has been approved by a Minnesota Senate committee, with proceeds earmarked for rural highways.

In other legislative action Monday, a House committee approved a major environmental bill while the Senate approved the "double bottom" truck bill.

The gasoline tax bill approved 8-4 by the Senate Transportation Committee would increase the present tax from seven to eight cents a gallon July 1. It would raise an estimated $19.3 million a year.

Gov. Wendell Anderson has not commented directly on whether he would support a fuel tax boost. However, he has said he would not consider it a violation of his "no tax increase" budget since it goes for a specific purpose, not for general revenue.

Sen. Carl Jensen, R-Sleepy Eye, says "the most expensive lobbying effort that has gone into any bill in this legislature" helped win Senate approval for the "double bottom" truck bill, 45-18.

This marks the first time either house of the legislature has approved the long-controversial measure. The bill would allow 6-foot twin-trailer units, 10 feet longer than the current limit for conventional semi-trailers.

Efforts to pass a twin-trailer bill have failed in the past five sessions. Final approval by both houses appears certain this time, although the House version includes an additional truck tax not in the bill passed by the Senate.

The House Environmental Preservation-Natural Resources Committee approved, 19-6 with eight abstentions, a bill which would shift the burden of proof to the defendants in lawsuits brought by private citizens or organizations against alleged polluters. The measure would apply in cases in which a defendant pays more than $250,000 annually in local property taxes or in which the defendant is a municipality of more than 10,000 population. Under current law, the burden of proof rests with the plaintiff.

The bill also removes the exemption of farmers against being sued in pollution cases, granted in the 1971 Environmental Rights Act.

The measure, which now goes to the House floor, was endorsed by Anderson in his special environmental message to the legislature.

The Senate voted 55-2 in favor of a bill allowing banks to make installment loans of up to $25,000. The current limit on such loans is $5,000.

The Senate defeated, 42-13, a bill by Sen. Mel Hansen, R-Minneapolis, to tighten state laws dealing with lawn signs in political campaigns. Among other things, it would require removal of signs by the third Saturday after elections.

The bill makes 160 changes in state law, which now sets the age of majority at 21.

State House OK's lowering adult age

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A bill lowering the age of adulthood to 18 in Minnesota has won preliminary approval of the state House and final passage is expected Wednesday.

The House passed the bill on a 62-24 vote Monday after reversing itself and making the legal drinking age 18.

An amendment approved last Thursday by a 67-57 vote had set the legal drinking age at 19. That was reversed by a 62-56 vote Monday.

Rep. Bruce Vento, D-St. Paul, chief author of the bill, argued for a "uniform and consistent treatment" of granting all adult rights to 18-year-olds.

Seven Republicans and 55 DFLers voted for the lower drinking age, while 10 DFLers and 46 Republicans opposed it.

The measure, which would be sent to the Senate after final House approval, has the backing of Gov. Wendell Anderson. It would take effect Oct. 1.

The bill permits those 18 and older to make wills, enter into binding contracts, own property, marry without parental consent and enter certain occupations now limited to persons 21 and older.

The bill makes 160 changes in state law, which now sets the age of majority at 21.

Honda confident it will meet pollution rules

TOKYO (AP) — The Honda Motor Co. says it is confident official tests will show that anti-pollution devices it has developed for two General Motors cars will meet the tough 1975 standards set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Honda announced development of the devices last week and said it expected the EPA to test them later this year. The company said two Chevrolet Impala passenger cars passed the EPA's 1975 standards when using Honda's Compound Vortex Controlled Combustion (CVCC) technology.

In tests at Ann Arbor, Mich., last year, the EPA certified 1,950cc engines mounted in small cars as being able to pass the 1975 standards. But some U.S. automakers were skeptical the Japanese technology could be used in larger engines that are standard on most U.S.-made autos.

Honda's CVCC engines use a small combustion chamber mounted above the normal engine cylinder. Dual inlet valves allow a rich fuel mixture into the small chamber and a very lean mixture into the normal burning area.

The spark plug mounted in the small chamber ignites the rich mixture, which in turn ignites the very lean mixture. Combustion involving lean fuel burning relatively slowly produces few pollutants.

The Honda engine does not need an exhaust catalyst or other secondary pollution control devices, the company said.

Rep. MacMillan has surgery for gall bladder

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — State Rep. Helen MacMillan, DFL-Austin, was reported in good condition today at St. Paul-Ramsey Hospital after undergoing emergency surgery for removal of her gall bladder.

Mrs. MacMillan, 63, underwent surgery Sunday and is expected to be hospitalized until at least the end of this week. She had planned to return Monday to her first full day at the legislature since she was released March 27 from a 12-day stay at the hospital for treatment of a lung condition. She returned to the hospital last Friday.

School band staffs request more help, citing workload

Requests for additional personnel to staff the band programs at Winona Senior and Junior High schools Monday night prompted the district school board to request additional information on projected enrollments for the two programs.

Letters were received from Robert Andrus, Senior High School band director, and two members of the junior high instrumental music department, each seeking another full-time instructor for the respective programs.

School Board

IN EACH CASE, increased numbers of students participating in band was cited as the reason for the need for additional personnel.

Andrus also commented on the increment paid him for time spent outside the regular school day on band work, asserting that he believed his increment was the lowest paid any member of the school staff and declaring it worked out to only about 34 cents an hour.

During the discussion of the two requests, board members learned that there appeared to be discrepancies between the enrollment figures quoted by the staff members and the current participation and projected enrollments compiled by the school administration.

In his letter to the board, Andrus recalled that when he joined the faculty in 1946, the vocal music director was a half-time band assistant and that the arrangement was satisfactory in early years, when vocal and instrumental programs were small.

"HOWEVER, as the vocal department and band program grew," Andrus declared, "the use of the vocal director, through no fault of his own, became less and less until at the present time I have his services only two periods a week, and even this small amount of time puts too much of a load on his time."

Each year, directors were told, the work load of the band director becomes greater with increased enrollment and an expanded program. Next year, he said, he will be teaching about 100 students, the number he said, normally considered maximum for one instrumental teacher. The following year, he noted, 140 sophomores alone will be entering the high school band program.

Andrus said the teaching phase alone could be handled by one man next year but the following year it could not, holding that the physical maintenance of a band program the size of District 86's is a full-time job in itself.

"At the present time, and for a number of years now," Andrus wrote, "to get the job done I have had to put in many extra unpaid hours. I have had to often cancel lessons when the extra hours before and after school and after supper ran out. This situation is not fair to the student or his parents, who expect him to receive a band lesson every week. Right now, I can only say it has become too much for one man to handle, or to be expected to handle."

TELLING BOARD members "there is much more to running a band program than just directing rehearsals and instructing students on their instruments, which is a full-time job in itself," Andrus cited hours he said were spent in various aspects of the program.

These included 384 hours in the marching band program—sorting uniforms, charting band shows, copying, editing and sorting 2,700 parts used in band shows, rehearsals, performance and trips — of which, he said, 144 are worked in the afternoon of the summer program after the other members of the staff have left at noon and for which he received no pay.

He mentioned 66 hours with the tournament band for rehearsals before school, performances, arranging and sorting music, trips, chaperoning and other duties; 61 hours in the solo and ensemble program for rehearsal after school and in the evening, selection on Saturdays of music at stores, contests, trips and chaperoning; 176 with the band show, including Saturday purchase of music, selection of costumes, preparation and writing of the show, writing narrations and other work; 150 hours with the concert band for selection of music on Saturdays, sorting and marking of parts, performances, trips and chaperoning and 72 hours for sectional rehearsals before and after school hours.

ANDRUS SAID that his "band increment for hours spent other than the school work days is $250. I am quite sure that this is the lowest paid increment of the entire staff. Figured on an hourly basis, this amounts to a pay scale of 34 cents an hour."

The letter requesting additional staff members for the junior high school band program for 1973-74 year was signed by staff members Jackson H. Herr and David B. Heyer.

They pointed out that there are 236 students in the program and that Heyer teaches 110 students and directs one band that meets five periods a week. Herr teaches 126 students and directs two bands.

"Because of the number of students," they said, "we have had to combine 82 students into 41 lesson blocks. The combined lessons are not working out, due to the fact that one of the two students is sometimes absent. Also, it is difficult to schedule two students of unequal ability into the same lesson block."

During the next school year, directors were told, projections indicate 140 seventh grade students coming into the band program. On the basis of this projection by David Lueck, head of the elementary music department, they said, there will be a total of 330 students in the junior high program next year.

"BETWEEN THE two teachers, there is a total of 220 lesson blocks each week," the staff members said. "It would be impossible to add 110 students to the present schedule without additional staff." The projected number of students who will enter the junior high program will average from 100 to 115 a year, the board was advised, "and to properly maintain the junior high band program at present and in the future, we feel there is an urgent need for an additional full-time staff member."

Board President Frank J. Allen asked Dr. C. H. Hopf, assistant superintendent of schools for secondary education and Wallace Hitt, Senior High School principal, whether they had data related to the enrollment situation.

Dr. Hopf said that he had consulted with the junior high school principal and understood that the number of this year's ninth grade students participating in band who would be entering Senior High School next fall was 68, rather than the 140 cited by Andrus.

HITT SAID that information he had received this past week indicated 88 would be in the senior high band next year and Dr. Hopf said he felt that if the total number of participants should be 100 or fewer, he did not think the request for an additional instructor was justified.

Kenneth P. Nelson, 1st District director, asked whether Andrus had been advised of the administration's figures and Dr. Hopf replied, "No, these are new figures he wouldn't know about."

Andrus this week is accompanying the senior high band on a concert tour in Canada.

Dr. C. W. Rogers, director at large, asked how the increment paid Andrus compared with that paid other band directors throughout the state and Dr. Hopf answered that increments varied, noting, "some may be much less than his, while others may be much more. His seems to be in line with the average, though."

Nelson said he felt that since the increment had been arrived at during teacher salary negotiations, he felt that this was a matter that should be considered when negotiations on a new two-year contract are reopened next year and other board members concurred.

COMMENTING ON the hours cited by the band director, Dr. Hopf said, "This all comes down to the nature of the job. It's a matter of to what extent these activities are a fundamental part of the band master's job. It's my thinking that much of these are inherent to the nature of the job."

Allen said he felt it would be difficult to equate the time spent by the band director on associated activities with that of the classroom teacher on preparation for classroom work.

When Superintendent of Schools A. L. Nelson said, "I think one thing must be said in his (Andrus) behalf and that is that he works hard at his job," board members agreed but questioned to what extent these additional duties were a part of his basic assignment.

Going on to the request from the junior high school staff, Dr. Hopf said that most recent data obtained by the administration indicated that 265 students, not the 330 cited by the instructors, would be enrolled in the junior high band program next year.

"It looks like these figures indicate that we should consider either more help at this level or controlling the number who want to participate in the junior high band program."

When Allen asked how limits might be implemented, Dr. Hopf replied, "At Senior High School we have limited industrial arts shop facilities and each year for several years we have had to counsel 150 or so students out of registering for shop. This might be done in junior high band, although it might be difficult to tell a parent who has purchased an instrument for his child that the child cannot participate in band."

KENNETH NELSON said he felt the band situation was somewhat different from the shop problems since, in the latter, a physical space limitation was involved.

"At first glance," Nelson said, "I'd like to provide the opportunity for as many students who really are interested to participate."

Superintendent Nelson suggested that if any limitation on band participation were to be imposed, the best approach might be to apply this at the fifth grade level, where the band program starts.

Following additional discussion of the problem, Allen requested Dr. Hopf and Hitt to compile expanded information about the band programs for presentation to the board at its meeting next week, noting that at that time Andrus will be back in the city.

Report Soviet writer transferred to labor camp

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident sources say Soviet writer Vladimir Bukovsky has been transferred to a labor camp after completing two years in prison. He was sentenced last year to 12 years' detention. Bukovsky, 30, was sentenced in January 1972 for "subverting Soviet authority." He previously spent three years in a labor camp and two in a prison psychiatric asylum for his political activities.

POLISH HERITAGE . . . Dr. Leo Ochrymowycz, left, spoke to a packed Winona County Historical Society house Monday night, when he discussed Polish people in Southeastern Minnesota. The talk, one of a series in the Perspective on Regionalism program, centered on Winona's 19th century Po-

Lecture notes Polish roots, leadership

"Wiarus," Winona's nationally-read Polish language newspaper in the late 19th century and the Rev. James Pacholski, pastor at the building of St. Stanislaus Church, were featured in a talk on Polish people in Southeastern Minnesota Monday night.

Dr. Leo Ochrymowycz, St. Mary's College modern language professor, spoke to a capacity crowd of about 200 listeners at the Winona County Historical Society. The talk was one of a series of Perspective on Regionalism sponsored by the Minnesota Humanities Commission and local colleges cooperating with the society.

Hieronim Derdowski, editor of "Wiarus," became internationally known for his leading Polish language paper, poetry and other writings. The immigrant to Winona was studied by Dr. Ochrymowycz through papers and microfilms of the newspaper issues.

Derdowski is buried in St. Mary's Cemetery and a monument stands in his hometown of Wiele, Poland, rebuilt after World War II.

Father Pacholski, for many years a leader in Polish Catholic and the Winona community, was a noted Polish immigrant among the Kashubian Poles who settled in this area. He was known for his immigrant philosophy that his people were "born Polish, live Catholic and die American."

Dr. Ochrymowycz told his audience that the immigration by Poles to the Winona area preceded immigration to Minneapolis and St. Paul by 30 years and that many Twin City Poles had Winona roots.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ochrymowycz, Mrs. Cletus Moore and Mrs. Harold Hoppel, who had baked Polish-style cookies.

Paul Libera introduced the speaker.

Milwaukee Co. board members refuse petitions

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Milwaukee policeman told a courtroom audience Monday how he spotted a woman riding the hood of her husband's car. Her husband was behind the wheel.

"She was lying on the hood of the car," Patrolman Lawrence Szerbowski told Reserve County Court Judge Edward Minor. "It was like deer season."

He said that when he pulled the car and its rider over, the woman, Mrs. M.L. Burnside, 21, began shouting, "He's with another woman."

Mrs. Burnside "jumped inside the vehicle and started beating the women" riding with Mr. Burnside, the officer said.

Szerbowski said it took several policemen to separate Mrs. Burnside from the woman inside the car. He charged Mrs. Burnside with disorderly conduct.

"She had to confront her husband," attorney Raymond Aul said of his client. "She was rather emotionally upset."

"I'm going to hold this open for 90 days providing you don't go riding on any more hoods of cars," the judge said.

NFO discusses meat withholding

BLACK RIVER FALLS, Wis. (Special) — About 300 persons crowded the community room of the Jackson County Bank here Monday evening to attend a meeting of the Jackson County National Farmers Organization (NFO).

The meeting was called to discuss the current nationwide meat boycott and President Nixon's meat price ceiling.

According to Robert Olson, Taylor, Jackson County NFO president, the meeting was to sound out farmers since the NFO is contemplating a meat withholding action to counteract the effect of the boycott and the President's price ceiling.

Olson said it was time the farmers' side of the meat marketing situation was told. The farmers receive only about 42 cents of each dollar spent by the consumer for meat, he said.

A call for action was put out to the farmers at the meeting, according to Olson. The farmers were asked to sound out fellow farmers to see how much support there would be for a meat withholding action.

Olson said if the opinions of the majority of Jackson County farmers concur, the NFO is

Burlington people hope to dramatize use of energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the 7,500 residents of Burlington, Wis., will cooperate during Earth Week in a turn-back-the-clock experiment to gauge and dramatize energy consumption, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said Monday.

Nelson, originator of Earth Day and then Earth Week, will spend two days during the April 9-15 observance in Burlington, where residents have been asked to cut back energy consumption by 50 per cent—to 1950 levels.

"In our impending energy crisis the average consumer of energy is not helpless," Nelson said in announcing the demonstration. He "can be a significant factor in conserving and reducing the amount of energy consumed."

A candlelight dinner is being planned for the Racine County community. Diners will be asked to arrive without use of their automobiles, and the menu will be prepared without the use of energy.

Lennon says he has appealed deportation order

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Beatle John Lennon says he has appealed a federal deportation order.

Lennon's lawyer said Monday that if the appeal is turned down his client will take the case to other courts. He added, "It could take a number of years" before the case is finally decided.

Lennon had been given 60 days to leave the United States voluntarily or be deported as an undesirable alien. The order was issued on March 24.

The judge also found Lennon's Japanese wife, Yoko Ono, deportable, but granted her application to stay here as a permanent alien resident. Lennon's application was denied because he was arrested in England in 1968 on a charge of possessing hashish.

Green Bay Reformatory said necessary for dangerous prisoners

By RONALD W. BROWNE
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — If the Green Bay Reformatory were closed today, corrections officials say, there would be no place to house some 700 prisoners they consider too dangerous to be placed in other facilities.

Heads of two of the institutions threatened with shutdowns in Lucey's budget say their facilities are essential. Lucey says the state can do without them.

A Division of Corrections spokesman asked not to be quoted by name because he didn't want to "make it look like the department was calling Lucey a liar."

He said most of the empty beds are at institutions that were not intended to house maximum security prisoners.

Robert Dunn, Lucey's executive secretary, said the state would save $32 million over the next four years under the governor's plan.

Lucey would transfer prisoners from Green Bay to a remodeled Kettle Moraine Boys' School, where Dunn said a 60 per cent vacancy exists.

The $13.5 million Adams County institution, built for youthful offenders but never opened, would be sold and the Central State Hospital held in reserve.

Lucey has said repeatedly he does not favor the elimination of the state's prison system. He stressed a need to save state funds, and said it could be done by filling some facilities to capacity and eliminating the others.

Lithuanian court sentences four Jehovah's Witnesses

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
MOSCOW (AP) — A court in Lithuania has sentenced four Jehovah's Witnesses to five years in labor camps and five others to lesser terms.

The Witnesses were accused of building an underground organization, printing and disseminating anti-Soviet literature and urging disobedience of Soviet laws. Sovietskaya Litva, the newspaper of the Lithuanian Communist party, said the sect's literature and theological directives came from the headquarters of the Witnesses in Brooklyn, N. Y., headed by Nathan Homer Knorr. It called him a "reactionary anti-Communist."

The paper said the Witnesses in the Soviet Union are headed by Wilijus Araijs, described as an elderly man. It reported a court in the Baltic port city of Klaipeda sentenced him and two associates to five years in "strict regime" labor camps and another person got five years in a less severe labor camp.

Two more Witnesses got two-year sentences, another got 2½ years, and two others were put on probation for three years.

The paper said Araijs organized secret groups of Witnesses in Lithuania, Latvia and around Leningrad and Kaliningrad.

Sovietskaya Litva said the Witnesses had a tightly organized, "multi-stage" leadership structure throughout the Soviet Union that was highly efficient in arranging secret meetings for Bible readings, smuggling pamphlets into the country and reproducing and distributing them.

The paper said a Witness in the town of Vayvod, Alexandra Gachaitis, "set up a workshop" to reproduce the sect's magazine, "The Watchtower," and other Jehovahist tracts.

"Those in Brooklyn employ any means to win supporters in our country and incite in them an anti-Soviet spirit," Sovietskaya Litva said.

The group's leaders urge their followers to shun civic activities, not to observe Soviet laws, and they incite absurd inventions about the "satanic" character of Soviet power," the paper continued.

Dunn suggested the corrections department was feuding on its figures.

"On one hand, 25 to 30 prisoners a month are being released into society from Green Bay, while on the other hand they're saying these prisoners can't be transferred from one institution to another," he said.

Dunn said reshuffling inmates between facilities would leave the state with adult male penal institutions at Waupun and Fox Lake, and the camp system, Central State would be held in reserve to ensure adequate space if prison population increases.

Dr. Edward Schubert, superintendent at Central State, said about 200 of that facility's 248 inmates are "considered maximum security."

"Four-fifths of the people here are here because of a crime," Schubert said. "They have either been adjudged criminally insane, incompetent to stand trial for mental reasons or are admitted for observation."

He contends there are no other mental institutions in the state that could serve patients at Central State.

"You can't take a person out of here where he is closely supervised and put him in a place where he can walk out of the door any time he gets ready," Schubert said.

Cancer treatments seen

Two compounds discovered that control cell growth

By C. G. MCDANIEL
NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Discovery of two compounds which regulate growth of body cells may one day lead to treatments for some cancers and psoriasis as well as other diseases.

These two compounds, known to scientists as Cyclic AMP and Cyclic GMP, were discussed by scientists Monday at an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers.

While these compounds appear to hold great promise for therapy in the future, the scientists noted no clinical applications are available yet.

Dr. Nelson Goldberg of the University of Minnesota described the two compounds as having "Yin and Yang" functions. This refers to an ancient Chinese concept that the universe is regulated by opposing dual forces called "yin" and "yang."

Goldberg discovered GMP in cells in 1969. Dr. Earl Sutherland of Vanderbilt University was awarded a Nobel Prize in 1971 for his discovery of AMP some years earlier. Sutherland, who chaired Monday's panel, also found GMP in cells in 1969.

AMP and GMP are said to tell individual cells what to do and when to do it. AMP inhibits activity; GMP stimulates it. In effect, they serve as "off" and "on" switches for cell functions. They tell heart cells when to expand and when to contract.

Goldberg pointed out that these two compounds occur in extremely minute quantities in the body, but that their discovery "may add a new dimension to biological regulation."

If these compounds can be used to interfere with abnormal cell division, they will be useful in treating a number of diseases.

The problem remains to find a way to cause them to affect only abnormal cells and not healthy parts of the body at the same time.

Dr. Edgar E. Smith of Boston University reported that he injected human mouth cancer cells into the cheek pouch of hamsters.

The result was that those cells which had been treated with AMP did not grow, but the untreated cells caused cancer in the hamsters.

Dr. John J. Voorhees of the University of Michigan said he has found that the amount of Cyclic AMP in psoriasis lesions taken from 50 patients is less than the amount found in the skin of persons who do not have the disease.

This may be a means of understanding this hereditary disease, which affects 2 to 3 per cent of the population. It is not often fatal, but it can be grossly debilitating.

Goldberg discovered GMP in cells in 1969. Dr. Earl Sutherland of Vanderbilt University

Amtrak to raise Midwest fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., said Monday it will raise some Western and Midwest fares 10 or 12 per cent and reduce some fares in other areas as much as 19 per cent April 29.

Western fares, which historically have been lower than for other parts of the nation, will increase up to 10 per cent, for both coach and first class, on routes between Chicago and Denver, and between Seattle and Los Angeles, Amtrak said.

Long distance round trip fares in first class and coach class, between the Midwest and the west coast, will be increased 6 to 12 per cent.

The Panama Limited, between Chicago and New Orleans, will offer a 19 per cent reduction in coach fare.

Reduced fares for groups of 15 or more, for round trips, will be offered throughout the country. Previously these discounts varied widely, and on many of the railroads now in the Amtrak system they were not even available.

Amtrak said that starting April 29 family fares will apply only on trips starting on Mondays through Thursdays. The purpose of this change is to encourage midweek travel and ease the generally heavier travel on weekends in many sectors.

One way fares between the middle west and California will remain unchanged.

By end of the week

Settlement seen at Wounded Knee

By TERRY DE VINE
WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — The U.S. government's chief negotiator says the 35-day occupation of Wounded Knee could be settled by the end of the week unless there is interference from dissidents who don't want a peaceful end to the confrontation.

"I think an agreement could come in the next two or three days," Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell said, "unless there are those individuals who are deadset against an agreement and purposely commit some act to try and make sure there is a confrontation, an exchange of deadly force."

"There may be those who do not want an agreement and it depends on how much influence they have and exert to make sure that the majority don't make an agreement," Frizzell told a news briefing after a two hour round of peace talks Monday.

American Indian Movement attorney Ramon Roubideaux concurred, saying, "I think that's a fair statement."

John Denzer, 478 W. Howard St., reported the theft of a 1972 Honda motorcycle valued at $255. The machine was taken from the garage of his residence between 5 and 10 p.m. Monday.

Cheryl Walker, Conway Hall, Winona State College, reported the theft of her girl's bicycle sometime Tuesday night. The bike, valued at $100, was tied to a metal bar outside Conway Hall.

Three fiberglass canoes valued at $450 were reported taken from Midwest Fiberglass Products, Breezy Acres, sometime last weekend. The canoes, 17 feet long, were taken from the rear of the plant.

necessary only once every six weeks or more, where cleaning once a week was necessary with the use of number five and six oil.

He also said that complaints were received from residents in the vicinity of the schools of smoke when the number five and six oil was used.

"It appears now," the superintendent said, "that we'll probably have to go back to number six in the buildings that are equipped to burn this type of fuel."

NELSON SAID he had also been advised by the supplier that "asking for fuel oil bids at this early date would not be advisable because no firm is willing to bid with the present chaotic conditions of the market."

The board's business manager, Paul W. Sanders, also said the district had been advised, when it advertises for fuel oil bids, to specify number two oil but to ask for alternatives for supplying number five or six for the three buildings.

Turning to fuel supplies for school district vehicles, Nelson said that about 600 gallons of gasoline are used each month at the district garage in Goodview.

He said that no difficulties have been encountered in obtaining fuel, yet noted that Winona County recently had renegotiated a gasoline contract and that the one bid received quoted a price about 5 percent higher than that of last year.

Sanders said that it was his understanding that at least two Minnesota school districts had advertised for bids on number two fuel oil for their schools and had received no response.

Board listens to LWV positions

Mrs. Kent Cowgill, president of the Winona League of Women Voters, appeared before the Winona County Board of Commissioners this morning to present the League's position on several matters which have been brought before the board.

Mrs. Cowgill told commissioners that the LWV enthusiastically supports joint meetings between the board and the Winona City Council as conducted earlier this week.

There are potential economies, she said, in combining a city-county jail system, a city-county library system, joint police-sheriff radio and joint civil defense system.

MRS. COWGILL reiterated the League's push for a coordinator-type system in county government. Also mentioned by the League's president was a bill now before the legislature requiring all counties to provide public nursing service. The bill would provide state aids to areas in excess of 50,000 population. Houston County, south of Winona County, does not provide nursing service, she said, and the two counties could combine, thereby meeting the population requirement, and providing up to $18,000 in state aids for Winona County under the state formula.

The League's position in setting up a merit system was to wait until a county coordinator was appointed, but the board jumped a day ahead of the League. Monday afternoon, the board authorized a contract by a Twin-Cities management consulting firm to conduct a study to set up a merit system and personnel and pay policies system for Winona County employees.

The League's position was that the coordinator could do this with help from the city's colleges.

COMMISSIONER Len Merchlewitz commented that the board must take some action along this line immediately, because several county employee groups were joining unions and that studies must start on next year's budget.

In other action, a committee was appointed, with Merchlewitz as chairman, to make a study of a city-county jail consolidation. Appointed were Paul Schreiber, Winona city manager; Winona County Attorney Julius Gernes; Robert Carstenbrock, Winona police chief; and Winona County Sheriff Helmer Weimann. One additional member, a Winona city councilman, will be appointed later.

Miller A. Friesen, program director of the Hiawatha Valley Mental Health Center, met with the Winona County Board of Commissioners this morning regarding the center's budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

No approval was given and a meeting was set up for 10:30 a.m. Wednesday for further discussion.

Friesen explained that the biggest hike in the budget was due to the county's taking over the drug and alcohol abuse counseling program for which federal funds have run out.

The cost of absorbing the program amounts to $15,365, which would bring the 1973-74 budget to $137,000, up from the 1972-73 figure of $114,330.

Commissioner Len Merchlewitz termed himself disturbed by the increase, in that no fees from the recipients of the program are required. "The federal government set this thing up and then backed off," he said. "We have the same right to back off."

Commissioner Leo Borkowski commented: "Federal revenue sharing is now going to be the thing. They're putting it all back to the local politicians."

The board agreed that more time should be spent going over the budget and the Wednesday meeting with Friesen was scheduled.

He was a former employee of the Minnesota Highway Department born in Pepin Township, Wabasha County June 11, 1905, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guston Lundberg. He served in the U.S. Navy.

One brother John Oak Ridge, Ore., survives. One brother is dead.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 p.m. Wednesday and until services Thursday.

Three appointed to rights group

Three new appointments have brought the Winona Human Rights Commission to full 15-member strength. The appointees replace three commissioners who resigned last year.

City councilmen voted approval of the appointments of Ferris R. Love, 438 Kerry Court, to replace the Rev. Daniel Dernek; Robert Clayton, 715½ W. Wabasha St., to replace State Rep. M. J. McCauley; and Jerome A. Colletti, 1124 W. Broadway, to replace the Rev. G. H. Huggenvik.

Council also filed notification by Winona Independent School District 861 that Frank J. Allen Jr., 203 E. Broadway, replace L. H. Santelman on the Winona Athletic Board. The appointment is not subject to council approval.

Allen owns Culligan Water Conditioning Co. and is president of the District 861 School Board.

Love is in the industrial relations department at Warner & Swasey Co., as is Colletti at Lake Center Switch. Colletti is former economics professor at St. Mary's College and adviser to an economics fraternity.

Mayor Norman E. Indall, a member of that fraternity, entered Colletti's name for council confirmation.

Indall also recommended Clayton, a colleague at Winona Senior High School, who teaches English. Indall is social studies department chairman.

Terms are set until Sept. 16, 1974, for Love and Clayton and 1975 for Colletti.

Reappointed to the Winona Board of Adjustment for a three-year term is Mrs. Patricia D. Patterson, 212 Hamilton St. Business manager of the Credit Bureau of La Crosse-Winona, her new term will expire April 3, 1976.

Municipalities to meet with county on ambulances

The Winona County Board of Commissioners will meet with county, village and township officers at the courthouse Wednesday evening to discuss county ambulance service.

For the past six weeks, commissioners have been discussing renewal of an agreement with Praxel Ambulance Service, Winona, to provide county-wide service at a monthly rate of $280. Two ambulance services operating in the county — at St. Charles and Altura — have requested that they be subsidized along with the Praxel service.

County Board

COMMISSIONERS have expressed dissatisfaction — to say the least — in their meetings with Melvin Praxel regarding renewal of the contract. Praxel's contract with the county expired Sunday. What seems to bother board members most is Praxel's refusal to produce his "books" for perusal and that when he appears at board meetings, he is always accompanied by an attorney.

At the suggestion of Board Chairman James Papenfuss, commissioners decided to meet with township and village officers to determine their feelings on contracting for their own ambulance service.

"Let the townships and villages contract for their own ambulance service," Papenfuss said. "Why do we have to set any lines? If a township wants Praxel or Altura or St. Charles, let them negotiate a contract."

Board members agreed that, since the city of Winona pays the Praxel service $10,000 per year and that there are other services operating in the county, thought should be given to having each village and township make a decision on the ambulance service of its choice and then negotiate directly.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m.

THE BOARD also set up a meeting with county trash haulers, landfill operators, highway patrol and county sheriff representatives and the Winona County highway engineer for 7:30 p.m. Thursday to discuss which state and county highways and county roads shall be used for the hauling of trash to the landfills.

In other action, the board entered into a contract with Loren Law and Associates, Minneapolis, a management consulting firm, to set up a merit-type personnel plan for county employees to include a salary schedule plan.

The study will start within two to three weeks and will be completed in about three months. Under the contract, the cost will not exceed $10,000.

At the suggestion of Board Chairman James Papenfuss, commissioners decided to meet with township and village officers to determine their feelings on contracting for their own ambulance service.

"Let the townships and villages contract for their own ambulance service," Papenfuss said. "Why do we have to set

Bids will be taken April 16 on 1973 sewer and water construction projects approved by Winona councilmen and including utility extensions in Skyline Subdivision and the replat of Wincrest.

Public hearings on the Skyline water and another project to surface Pelzer Street from Highway 61 to Prairie Island Road, with curb and gutter up to West 5th Street, passed without citizen testimony Monday night.

The May 7 council meeting has been set to receive bids on Pelzer Street construction work totaling $128,015, according to City Engineer Robert J. Bolant's revised estimates.

Three projects already approved for the 1973 Capital Improvements Program will be included in the April 16 bidding: storm sewer in Huff Street; Gould Street improvement; East Burns Valley Road storm sewer and storm sewer in Block 19, E. C. Hamilton's Addition and bandshell area in Lake Park; and water main in Theurer Boulevard from Pate-nuade Drive 720 feet west.

Total construction costs are estimated at $6,650 for Mark Street storm sewer, $4,700 for Gould, East Burns Valley and the addition, and $9,400 for Theurer water main.

Revised estimate on Skyline sanitary sewer work is $52,656 and another $1,410 for surfacing the alley in Hamilton Addition.

Benefitted property owners will share in the costs for Skyline projects and the Theurer main.

Council delays construction of sidewalk

Construction of a sidewalk, which an attorney for Kujak Bros. Transfer, Inc., said could cost the firm its West Broadway business, has been delayed at least a year by Winona City Council.

Councilmen Monday night agreed to hold off on a proposed four-foot sidewalk running along 180 feet of West Broadway between Orrin and Junction streets.

because Kujak Bros. apparently needs the space for its truck terminal operations.

The sidewalk was deleted from 1971 sidewalk construction on the south side of Broadway adjacent to the Kujak property to give the company time to find another terminal site.

So far, officials said, the firm has been unable to receive proper zoning on a parcel purchased west of Goodview in Rollingstone Township. Attorney Steven H. Goldberg said other parcels are considered for a move.

"The effect of putting a sidewalk, I think," Goldberg told councilmen "would be to force them (Kujak) out of business there." He said there is no strong lobby or need for a sidewalk on that side of Broadway, adding that the project would be a "governmental mistake."

Councilmen Dan Trainor Jr. (1st, 2nd Wards) and Earl Lauf-enburger (1st) agreed, and Lauf-enburger moved to move the project proposal to the 1974 Capital Improvements Program to give the trucking company more time to move its operations or adjust to the loss of sidewalk space.

A staff proposal was to buy 360 square feet of right-of-way from the firm for sidewalk construction.

2nd Ward Council meet scheduled

Winona City Councilman Gaylord Fox will chair a special 2nd Ward meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lincoln School.

The information session is open to ward residents to talk with councilmen and city department heads about ward concerns or requests. The full council is expected to attend.

The meeting will be an informal session and no official council action may be taken, according to Mayor Norman E. Indall.

Car, paint, sand, rock are purchased

Winona councilmen bought a new car from Towsley Ford Co. Monday night and approved purchase agreements for traffic paint, sand and pea rock and crushed limestone.

Towsley outbid Winona Auto Sales with a net bid of $3,121 for a new car in the engineering department. Trade-in of a 1962 model four-door sedan accounted for the difference between a gross bid of $3,843 and what the city will pay.

Winona Auto Sales bid $3,340 net after a $1,101 allowance for the trade-in.

Vogel Paint and Wax Co., Inc., Orange City, Iowa, will supply the city with 400 gallons each of white and yellow traffic (street) paint for $2,120. Outbid was Farwell, Ozmun, Kirk & Co., St. Paul, at $2,676.

Single bids were received for sand and pea rock, $8,810 total from Winona Aggregate Co., and crushed limestone, $11,700 from Quarve and Anderson Co., Rochester, Minn. The Rochester company bid on 300 cubic yards of one grade and 4,000 of another. A total of 1,500 cubic yards of sand and 800 of pea rock will be delivered for the bid price.

Annexation of 14.35 acres to city completed

A 14.35-acre piece of Winona Township land along the Highway 14 cutoff is now a part of the City of Winona, following a final vote Monday to annex the land on petition by Winona Warehouse Corp.

Winona councilmen approved the annexation ordinance on the parcel generally west of the cutoff and south of Highway 61 without objections by the township. The corporation is sole owner of the land.

Council may decide to allow the land to enter the city under zoning other than the usual R-1 residential. The option is open for a year after annexation and would be considered "original zoning," according to city planner Charles E. Dillerud.

Councilmen have been told Winona Warehouse seeks B-2, general commercial business zoning, for the acreage, and another ordinance could be drawn to make the change.

Councilmen approved a zone change for 212 N. Baker St. from R-2 residential to B-1 business on request by owners of the Oasis Bar. Plans are to use the land now occupied by a house for parking.

Joint city-county C.D. system OKed

City Manager Paul G. Schriever and Clerk John S. Carter have been authorized to sign papers for Winona's involvement in a joint city-county Civil Defense System.

Councilmen Monday night approved a resolution authorizing execution of an agreement with the county. The vote resulted from a joint city-county meeting March 26.

Lewiston public hearing

Residents rap administrator concept

LEWISTON, Minn. — "If they're that dumb (the county commissioners), we ought to take them out and shoot them!"

"The way he screwed up that town is a pity." (Referring to the city of Winona and former city manager Carroll Fry.)

"THE LEAGUE (Winona League of Women Voters) is bugging the commissioners so much they can't get nothing done."

"You blew this whole thing by just being here." (Comment to representatives of the Winona League of Women Voters.)

"A county coordinator is like a little Gestapo."

"The people of Winona have suffered under two managers!" It was at this level that many of the comments were made Monday evening during a public hearing at Lewiston High School held by the Winona County Administrator Study Committee.

THE 10-MEMBER committee (seven were present at the hearing), chaired by Steven P. Johnson, Pickwick, was appointed by the Winona County Board of Commissioners last July and has been meeting regularly since October.

The committee's task is to investigate the advisability of hiring a county administrator to handle administrative and coordinative functions now performed by the five-member county board, thus allowing commissioners more time for policy-making matters. The position would be appointive. About 80 persons attended the committee's public hearing Monday night and the audience was predominantly rural-oriented.

Johnson informed the audience at the outset that the committee was not present to make recommendations or to try to "sell" — one way or another — the concept of a county administrator, but were trying to get some "input" from Winona County citizens and taxpayers regarding the concept.

AFTER THIS statement, the audience seemed slightly nonplussed, but the slack was taken up by Mrs. John Luebke, Winona, a member of the Winona League of Women Voters, a group that has been active in support of some type of county administrator system (although the league prefers to call it a "coordinator" system.) Mrs. Luebke outlined the advantages of having a full-time person in charge at the courthouse, under the control of the county board. The coordinator concept, she said, has been endorsed by both the county Republican party and Democratic Farmer-Labor party, would result in centralized purchasing for the county, a county merit system for employees, better public relations and, consequently, a savings for taxpayers.

Mrs. Luebke derided "apathy" toward county government and urged that "streamlining" was needed, stating that "if the taxpayer is to survive the burgeoning cost of duplication in government, we must be willing to change our governmental structure to meet the demands of our time."

SHE POINTED out that the citizens of Winona County "are paying $31,000 for five part-time county commissioners who serve as both policymakers and part-time administrators. To give the administrative responsibility to a full-time employee would justify an extensive cut-back in current salaries and go a long way to pay the coordinator's salary."

A man who identified himself as Bill Michaels, Norton Township, asked why the committee was studying the matter, that the commissioners should be asked about the advisability of the administrator plan. Johnson replied that if the commissioners had the answer, they certainly would not have appointed the committee to study the matter.

Although county board Chairman James Papenfuss and commissioners Len Merchlewitz and Edwin Kohler attended the hearing, Johnson told the group that he had promised not to put them "on the spot" and that they had agreed to attend to learn public feeling on the matter — not to try to sway opinion or to give their views.

DR. WARREN PUEHL, Winona State College, suggested that an administrator or coordinator might be valuable to keep track of state and federal programs which would provide funds for local and area projects. "We need somebody to keep on top of these things," he said.

Walter Young, Richmond Township board member, said that commissioners were doing a good job and that an administrator plan would "run into $75,000,000 before its done."

Women of the LWV countered with quotations from several county administrator salaries throughout the state.

Dick Rivers, Rollingstone, suggested that if the commissioners feel they were overworked they should appoint a supervisor from each township to help out.

CLARENCE MUNDT, 84, Charles, termed the county administrator plan "an exercise in stupidity. The board just becomes a front man under the plan," he said.

One administrator committee member, Elmer Ploetz, Lewiston, read a lengthy explanation of the optional forms of county government bill currently before the Minnesota House.

Johnson said that his committee hopes to come up with a final report to the county board by May or June, but said if the optional forms bill is passed, more alternatives will be presented and the committee may have to extend the study.

Students feel draft dodgers need punishment

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —

Four-fifths of about 116,000 students polled nationally feel Vietnam war draft dodgers and deserters should be punished, a Madison firm reported Monday.

The company said its survey showed 50.1 percent of students 18 years old favored conditional amnesty with some sort of public service requirement as restitution.

It said 32.7 per cent favored no amnesty and 10.1 per cent favored a general amnesty. About 7 per cent of the students had no opinion.

A spokesman for Visual Education Consultants said his firm's survey reveals young persons take a harder line on draft evaders than do adults.

What sort of 'counseling' is hubby giving?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 34 years old, and I am 35. We've been married for 12 years. I am a school teacher, and he does counseling. About six months ago he started to buy me some rather expensive presents. At the same time he himself came home with an expensive gold watch, some tailor-made suits, and finally a new expensive automobile.

I knew he couldn't afford all those things on what he made, so I had a long talk with him and he confessed that he has been getting large amounts of money from a woman. He described her as a high-priced call girl. He said he was helping her to work out her problems, that his interest in her was strictly professional and in appreciation for helping her get her head together she kept giving him large amounts of money.

He has been spending a lot of evenings away from home. Does this sound professional to you? SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: Not very. An ethical counselor usually charges a set fee, and doesn't accept "large amounts of money." It's all right for him to help her get her head together as long as he doesn't take too many things apart.

DEAR ABBY: A former neighbor phoned me yesterday and the first thing she asked me was: "How much did you get for your old house?" I told her. Then she asked me what we paid for our new house. I was so shocked at her nerve, I told her.

I mentioned we were trying to adopt some children from Korea or Viet Nam. She said: "Can't you have any of your own?" I told her we felt the world should provide for the children that are here. Then she told me she thought we were out of our minds to "borrow trouble."

Abby, we lost a pair of twin boys when our home caught fire six months ago, and I told her we felt so guilty because we survived and they didn't. She said we were "ridiculous" to feel that way. I told her we had talked to our minister and a psychiatrist and they agreed our feelings of guilt were normal, and only time would erase them. She said all psychiatrists were crazy, and ministers are stupid, and we could get over it if we wanted to.

Then she said, "Bill and I want to see your new house. If you don't want to make a dinner, have us over for cocktails soon, will you?"

I said: "Yes, I will." After I hung up I was angry with myself for letting this nifty woman maneuver me into promising to have her over. Should I just "forget" to invite her over? Or am I committed now? SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR SECOND: Don't "forget" to invite her. Remember to avoid her.

DEAR ABBY: Forty years ago, I fell in love with my first cousin. I was 17, and he was 19. Our parents (wisely?) broke it up.

I am 57 now, and he is 59 and both of us are free to marry. I'm recently widowed, and he's divorced. We would like to marry as we truly love each other. I am thru menopause

Money Does Matter . . .

By DAVE LUNDACK

Regular "banks" — and I now use the name in contrast to those financial institutions operating primarily on a savings and loan basis — but, regular "banks" offer a great number and variety of services.

"Banks", for example, make virtually every conceivable type of loan for what sometimes may seem unusual purposes, as well as the conventional types. Bankers welcome all applications for loans which will truly benefit borrowers and contribute to the local economy.

Most loan applications are approved, comparatively few are rejected. Concerned bankers try hard to find ways in which to help — and usually they manage to do just that.

Our congratulations to Mrs. Thomas Steltman, Mrs. Pat Peterson and Mrs. Paul Brewer who were featured in the Winona Sunday News for their outstanding work in the areas of family, solutely confidential basis, career and volunteer service. We commend them for their accomplishments and extend our best wishes for continued success!

DEAR ABBY: To the correspondent who said wedding presents were out of style — that they just passed the tray and collected money instead: Last summer we attended a wedding where the festive dinner was prepared by friends who were members of a gourmet cooking club. Their "gift" was preparing the dinner. Another friend donated his services by painting two rooms in the old house where the bride and groom were going to live.

Soliciting gifts of money would be considered bad form in our circles, and we are by no means the idle rich. Imaginative gifts suitable to the circumstances rate tops.

Your horoscope — Jeane Dixon

For WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Finds you in early stages of long-term upward movement. This is mainly a year of trial and error, slow but permanent gains with occasional abrupt pauses. Today's natives have an eye for the odd or unusual.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Plunging into quick deals doesn't work well. Tension and temper are best worked out in exercise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect resistance to main ventures—differences of opinion are normal and will develop over trivial matters as well as serious ones.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Keeping personal contacts simple is a fine art under today's crosscurrent conditions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): People show the harsh side of their natures, one then another; and it's up to you to reconcile them.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your course slows and you must verify your position. Take nothing for granted. Temporary discord is not to be assumed permanent.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Unreasonable associates are not to enjoy an equal response, be serene and prevail. It is a mixed day, all sorts of experiences to sort out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Organize your main effort to obtain your due from group or community resources. Accept challenge to debate, but think big.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your recent career effort comes to test today, and you learn what to do next. Prepare for a fresh start tomorrow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Vigorous self-expression is spontaneous. Discipline yourself not to go beyond reasonable limits; it's so easy to over-simplify.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your organizing talents fall into heavy use as you get the chance to consolidate your position.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may find yourself changing your opinion after having fussed too much about it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Distant conditions seem worse than they are, so stay put rather than rush to change matters.

Report bridge at Milwaukee may be target

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The massive high-rise bridge near completion over Milwaukee's harbor may suffer swipes from passing ships.

The 120-foot bridge clearance "may be insufficient to accommodate the extreme height of modern bulk carriers which serve our inner harbor," Milwaukee Alderman Robert Korud said Monday in a letter to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

The bridge is to meet expressways heading north and south from the downtown area, although environmentalists' challenges have delayed construction of the access roads.

John Seefeldt, director of the Port of Milwaukee, said that not only might the bridge be too low, but ships docking on the eastern side of Jones Island may barge into the roadbed that will lead to the bridge.

Seefeldt said he had spoken with county and state officials about the potential problems, but was told little could be done.

The bridge clearance of 120 feet was figured at normal water levels. But the lake level has risen 3½ feet since the estimate was made, and is expected to continue rising.

BEES TRIP ON KOWHAI

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand's golden-flowered kowhai tree is being blamed for sending thousands of bees on a drug "trip."

The bees were found in an apparent coma on the banks of the Mokihini River.

Officials of the Agriculture and Fisheries Department say the kowhai has a narcotic effect on bees, which can suffer hallucinations after sipping the nectar. The bees usually recover.

Cosmonauts to visit Houston next summer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A crew of Soviet cosmonauts will visit the Johnson Space Center here next summer to train on the Apollo spacecraft systems, space officials say. In September, a group of American astronauts will visit Russia to train on the Soyuz.

Glynn S. Lunney, U.S. technical director for the Apollo Soyuz Test Project, said Friday the plans were worked out during a two-week meeting here with a group of Soviet specialists.

The ASTP, set for 1975, calls for the Soviets to launch a Soyuz spacecraft from Russia with two men aboard. Seven hours later, an American Apollo spacecraft with three men aboard will be launched from Cape Kennedy.

The second day after launch, the Apollo team will rendezvous and dock with the Soyuz, and two U.S. astronauts will visit the Soviet ship. The next day, the two Soviet crewmen will visit the American craft, one at a time.

Visit Miami this weekend by long distance.

Rodriguez captures Greensboro Open

By BOB GREEN
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Little Chi Rodriguez has no illusions about extending his winning streak to two with a victory in the famed Masters this weekend.

"Jack Nicklaus will be there," Chi Chi explained.

"When Jack takes a week off (as he did in the Greater Greensboro Open), it's anybody's tournament," Rodriguez said Monday after his one-stroke victory over Lou Graham and Ken Still.

"But Augusta National (the site of the Masters) was made for Jack Nicklaus and Jack Nicklaus was made for Augusta National."

The 37-year-old Rodriguez, down to a wiry 120 pounds because of a diet he "hopes will help me live to be 140 years old," came from two strokes off the pace with a five-under-par 65 in the rain-delayed final and picked up $42,000 for his seventh tour triumph in 14 years on the pro tour.

WINONA DAILY NEWS SPORTS

Winona, Minnesota
TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1973

He had a 72 hole total of 267, 17 under par on the squishy, water-logged 7,021-yard Sedgewick Country Club course. Graham, who had a final 69, was one stroke away for the third week in a row. He tied at 268 with Ken Still, who bolted into contention with a last round 64 that included 11 one-putt greens.

Rodriguez and the rest of the field that is eligible for the Masters were delayed one day in getting to Augusta, Ga., where Nicklaus has been practicing for a week-by the rains that plagued the tournament, caused two postponements and left the course a soggy, goosy quagmire.

Rodriguez started the final round two strokes back of co-leaders Graham and Billy Casper. Casper and Graham both encountered trouble on the front nine, despite rules that allowed all players to lift, clean and place the ball in the fairway and through the green, and Chi Chi stormed past them on a string of three consecutive birdies starting on the seventh hole.

Behind Graham and Still came Casper and veteran Gay Brewer, tied at 270. Brewer, who has played extremely well this year and is a strong contender at Augusta, closed with a seven-under-par 64. Casper matched par 71.

Bobby Nichols was along at 271 with Doug Sanders, Rod Funseth and Lee Elder at 272. Elder needed to win to become the first black player to compete in the Masters. He once got within one stroke on the mild, windy final day, but finished with a 68 and so missed his chance at qualifying.

Sam Snead, who first won the Greensboro tournament in 1933, was among the leaders for the first three rounds but slipped back to par 71 and a tie for 12th at 274.

Still, the 60-year-old marvel beat Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino by two strokes. They tied at 276, Palmer with a closing 69 and Trevino 70.

NCAA gives in to AAU

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's chances against the Soviet Union's basketball team zoomed Monday when the National Collegiate Athletic Association, under prodding by a House subcommittee, agreed to open the way for college players to participate.

The move means the U.S. team could obtain the services of all-America center Bill Walton and other top-notch underclassmen.

Walton's participation, however, still hinges on several factors, including a decision by the UCLA junior to play.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, told the special House education subcommittee his organization would sanction the eight-game tour if the sponsors of the game, the Amateur Athletic Union, would apply for certification and the application meets all of the NCAA criteria.

An AAU spokesman, who was observing the hearing, immediately obtained an application. Byers said copies of the application would be distributed to the NCAA sanction committee and could be acted upon by Friday or Saturday.

Rep. John Dellenback, R-Ore., urged the NCAA to act with speed so that underclassmen, now barred from playing against the Russians, will be able to be selected.

Without NCAA certification, the U.S. team would be composed primarily of college seniors. Already selected for the squad are Steve Downing of Indiana; Ernie McGregoria, Providence; Mike Edwards, Tennessee; and Doug Collins, Illinois State.

Pro hockey playoffs start Wednesday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Stanley Cup and the World Trophy Playoffs get underway Wednesday night.

World Trophy? That's the prize—other than money, of course—which goes to the eventual winner of the World Hockey Association's first playoffs.

The Stanley Cup, of course, is the venerable $400,000 metal which goes to the National Hockey League's playoff champion.

In first-round NHL action Wednesday, Buffalo is at Montreal, the New York Rangers at Boston, St. Louis at Chicago and Minnesota at Philadelphia. The first four games of all four best-of-7 series will be played Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

teammates Ed Giacomin, Brad Park, Vic Hadfield and Bruce MacGregor are below par. Park sat out the two weekend games.

Boston Coach Bep Guidolin says he just wants "to win four games, but I don't want to make a prediction."

Phil Esposito and Bobby Orr are in great shape and so is 44-year-old goalie Jacques Plante, so all's right with the Bruins.

The West Division champion Chicago Black Hawks have been unbeaten in 12 first-round games over the last three years but they aren't taking St. Louis lightly.

"There's no such thing as an easy series," says Coach Billy Reay. "And there's no way I can keep from worrying about the Blues. They've beaten us three times in six games and two of our losses were at Chicago Stadium."

The Blues feel they have a good chance to upset the Hawks.

"Comparing the two lineups, I think we have as much talent as they do," says forward Gary Sabourin. "If we can come up with some hot goaltending we're going to be tough."

The healthy Philadelphia Flyers are ready to skate or fight against Minnesota. For the North Stars, defenseman Ted Harris will be back after missing practice Monday to attend the funeral of a brother killed in an auto accident.

Utah gets more than playoff win

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Stars' Coach LaDell Andersen feels Monday night's first-round American Basketball Association victory over San Diego was more than a playoff triumph.

The 1973-74 conquest was a confirmation of his long-held theory that a fast-breaking team is a winning team.

"Our win was just a case of a fast break and a good defense," the Stars' coach said following his team's first post-season game. "It's a ball-control game."

Veteran Zelmo Beaty did his share of controlling. The agile center pumped in 25 points and pulled down 14 rebounds, all on two of the weakest knees in pro basketball.

Teammate Ron Boone, a reserve guard through most of the season, hit 27 points for the game's scoring honors. Jimmy Jones added 19 for the Western Division champions.

Stew Johnson led the Conquistadors with 22 points and Chuck Williams had 20. Red Robbins dropped in 18 for San Diego.

The two teams play here again Wednesday night and then move to San Diego for games three and four on Saturday and Sunday.

The other ABA first-round playoffs swing back into action tonight. In the East Division, the Carolina Cougars face the Nets in New York and the Kentucky Colonels visit the Virginia Squires in Norfolk. In the West's other battle, the Denver Rockets host the defending ABA champion Indiana Pacers.

The National Basketball Association playoffs don't resume until Wednesday night when, in Eastern Conference play, the New York Knicks take their 2-0 lead into Baltimore against the Bullets and the Boston Celtics try to make it two in a row against the Hawks in Atlanta. In the Western Conference, the Milwaukee Bucks and Golden State Warriors, tied 1-1, play game No. 3 Thursday night in Oakland and, on Friday, the Los Angeles Lakers try to increase their 2-0 lead over the Bulls in Chicago.

McRae, Royals wallop Cards 7-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kansas City's Hal McRae tried to send the ball careening into the stands whenever he stepped up to the plate. Unfortunately, his lusty swings were missing the target. Then he shortened his swing.

"I hit a couple of balls deep earlier in the spring and I got carried away," McRae recalled. "I guess I lost my head for a while."

McRae was advised to work on regaining his short stroke and he found it in time to wallop three doubles and a single, driving in three runs Monday as the Royals registered a 7-2 exhibition baseball victory

Monday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

In other games Monday, Montreal whipped Boston 5-1, the Chicago White Sox defeated Texas 8-4, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 6-4, Oakland battered California 8-3, the Chicago Cubs clobbered Cleveland 15-2 and San Diego upended Milwaukee 5-3.

Elsewhere, Baltimore beat Atlanta 7-3, the New York Mets blanked the New York Yankees 5-0, Detroit triumphed over Cincinnati 4-1, Minnesota beat Houston 3-0 and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 3-2.

The Cubs smothered the Indians under a 22-hit onslaught but may have lost third baseman Ron Santo who was struck in the wrist by a pitch. Santo was taken to a hospital for X-rays but the results were not immediately known.

Detroit right-hander Joe Coleman and southpaw John Miller combined for a three-hitter and Al Kaline and Bill Freehan provided the Tigers' offensive punch with two hits each.

Dave Hilton lashed a two-run homer in the first inning that started the Padres en route to victory.

The Orioles scored three runs in the third inning off Gary Gentry, ending the Atlanta's hurler's 19-inning scoreless streak.

Jon Hart hit a two-out single in the bottom of the ninth as

Twins nearing the 500 mark

HOUSTON (AP) — The Minnesota Twins, moving towards the 500 mark in exhibition baseball, shut out the Houston Astros 3-0 Monday.

The Twins, now 3-1 against the Astros and 13-14 for the spring, meet Houston again tonight.

Jerry Terrell doubled to open the game and later scored on Danny Monzon's sacrifice fly, providing Minnesota with the only run it needed.

The Twins got another run in the seventh on Steve Brye's run-scoring double and their last in the ninth on Phil Roof's run-scoring single.

The Twins' pitchers held the Astros to three singles. Joe Decker went five innings, Dave Goltz one and Ken Sanders the final three.

The Giants nipped the Dodgers behind pitcher Tom Bradley, who went the distance for Los Angeles.

Joe Decker led a trio of Minnesota pitchers who limited Houston to three singles as the Twins scored in the first on Gary Terrell's double, an error and sacrifice by Dan Monzon and added runs in the seventh and ninth innings.

Dal Maxvill spearheaded a 11-hit Oakland barrage by hitting three consecutive singles and driving in two runs.

John Jeter drove in four runs for the White Sox with two doubles and a sacrifice fly.

Veteran Bob Bailey hit his first homer of the exhibition season and rookie Pepe Magual cracked his fourth as the Expos took an early lead with single runs in four of the first six innings.

The Pirates stunned rookie right-hander Larry Christenson for six runs and seven hits in the first three innings and then survived a Philadelphia rally highlighted by Greg Luzinski's solo homer.

John Milner and Wayne Garrett hit home runs in support of John Matlack's five-hit pitching as the Mets closed a two-game sweep over the Yankees.

Fishy navigation

HOW SALMON, after spending years at sea or in the Great Lakes, find their way back to the stream in which they were born to spawn has long been a mystery puzzling most who bother to think about it. Now there are some clues.

University of Wisconsin biologists have discovered that salmon receive a chemical imprint when they are born which leads them to that same place when they are ready to spawn. They can zero in on the right spot by using some kind of fantastic sense of smell.

Researchers have gone so far as to implant the salmon stocked in the Great Lakes with chemicals native to the fish reared in streams feeding the huge lakes and this artificial implantation even seems to work.

One question that's still unanswered though is how far away does the uncanny sense of smell work? Apparently a heck of a long way.

A fish can travel thousands of miles to sea and still return to his place of birth to spawn. How they manage this feat is still a matter of conjecture.

Another navigation feat that has researchers shaking their heads is how the mako shark and bluefin tuna navigate. Apparently they have some kind of organic mechanism that is sensitive to the light of the sun, moon and stars. Sort of a built-in sextant.

What's next?

IF A FISHERMAN loaded his boat with all the available gadgets said to make fishing easier and more comfortable, we doubt there'd be room for a small spool of four-pound test line.

With the electric spinning reels, telescoping rods, electronic depth finders, electronic thermometers, fish callers, steam-trunk-sized tackle boxes, electric outboards with remote control, gas outboards, anchors, lights, cushioned seats and you name it, what's left to invent?

Would you believe an electronic oxygen monitor to tell you when the oxygen level in the water is suited to the fish?

The Sentry Oxygen Monitor will tell you how much dissolved oxygen there is in the water anywhere in your favorite lake. The theory behind the new product is that fish need certain amounts of oxygen to be comfortable, and if you can find their comfort levels you should be able to find the fish. That's the same theory behind the thermometers.

One question that comes to mind is: what if the ideal oxygen level is at, say 10 feet, and the ideal temperature level is at 15 feet? Where would the fish be?

We'll concede that this gadget might have some beneficial aspects, and might even help fill a creel that much faster, but it's just another thing that will take some of the sport out of fishing.

Field Archery Tourney

THE 1973 NATIONAL Field Archery Association championships have been slated for the Fox River Valley of Northern Illinois this summer. The 28th annual tournament will be held near Aurora, Ill., July 27-29.

The five-day event will see shooters competing on six 28-target field courses set up south of Geneva, Ill., in the Fabry Forest Preserve.

Tournament officials expect from 400 to 700 shooters. Archers planning to attend the national shoot should apply early through the national headquarters of the NFAA, Redlands, Calif.

The NFAA includes more than 25,000 members throughout the country. More details on the coming tourney are available through its magazine, "Archery."

Sports show in full swing

THE 41ST ANNUAL Northwest Boat, Sports and Travel Show is in full swing today after a successful opening weekend. The Minneapolis Auditorium is again the site, and its floors are covered with everything for the outdoorsman and his family to enjoy this coming season.

Everything from fishing rods, shotguns, sleeping bags and travel trailers can be examined at the show.

Stage shows add to the fun twice a day and a special retriever clinic for local dog owners spices late-afternoon action.

The show will run through this weekend with the doors opening at 1 p.m. and closing at 11 today through Saturday. Hours Sunday are from 1 to 8 p.m.

Tri-State Hunting Dog group to meet

There will be two specific topics of discussion on the agenda for Thursday's regular monthly meeting of the Tri-State Hunting Dog Association when it meets at 7:30 p.m. in the Spanish rooms of St. Mary's College: cleaning up Prairie Island and finalizing plans for the annual licensed trial.

The club is concerned with cleaning Prairie Island, one of its primary training grounds, both from the standpoint of appearance and safety. The litter is both unsightly and dangerous to animals and humans.

The annual licensed field trial is scheduled for the first weekend in June and will draw retriever buffs from throughout the Midwest.

Stock market prices dive

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices nosedived for the third straight session today, and brokers attributed the drop to investors' continuing concern over inflation as well as a technical reaction to last week's rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 10.46 to 925.72 at noon.

Declines held almost a 3-to-1 lead over advances in fairly light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Prices also drifted lower on the American Stock Exchange, and the price-change index had fallen .06 to 24.26 at noon.

Brokers said investors continued to worry about inflation and their fears were not allayed by President Nixon's speech last week. Wall Street had hoped the President would impose stronger controls over rising prices, they said.

The Dow had advanced nearly 35 points in the first four sessions last week but began to fall after Nixon's address. It has plummeted nearly 24 points in the last two sessions.

Martin Marietta, off 1/4 to 17 1/2 on heavy institutional dealing, topped the active issues on the Big Board.

Atlantic Richfield paced a retreat in oils, set off in part by the Supreme Court's refusal Monday to overturn a lower court ban on the trans-Alaska pipeline. Richfield was down 1 1/2 to 72, Exxon was off 1/4 to 93 1/2.
